Raise to Cost Railroads $53 Million

Extra Freight Charge Asked
To Cover Annual Increase

MONTREAL, Nov. 28 (CP) — The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways today announced acceptance of a federal conciliation board report recommending an average wage increase of 16 cents an hour for non-operating railway workers.

At the same time, they announced they had made application with the board of transport commissioners for a boost in freight rates to cover that portion of the cost of the wage increases that would go to freight and passenger employees.

In a joint statement, the railroads estimated that their acceptance of the conciliation board's majority report would add $52,754,000 a year to their wage costs.

The freight rate increase application will cover $42,173,000 of that amount—$25,273,000 for the C.N.R. and $16,900,000 for the C.P.R. The freight increase would amount to 9 per cent and from 10 to 20 cents a ton on coal and coke.

"At the same time," the statement added, "the board is being informed that our two railways are considering and in due course will propose such increases in rates and tolls in respect of their other services as are necessary to meet the cost of the wage increases not being recouped by the present freight application."

The statement said the railways have informed Labor Minister Gregg of their willingness to accept the report.

This had been done "in the very sincere hope" that the railway brotherhoods representing the 144,000 non-operating employees "will join us and thus prevent any possibility of a recurrence of the unhappy events of two years ago."

A breakdown of wage negotiations in 1950 plunged the country into a crippling nine-day railway strike.

WALL OF PREJUDICE?

Travelers Kept Away From Omsk

Exclusive on Vancouver Island

Following is one of a series of articles by a well-known Montreal editor and publisher who spent September behind the Iron Curtain with an invitation to the World Peace Congress in Peking. Filion is editor of Le Devoir, a French language newspaper noted for its controversial attitude on current problems.

By GERARD FILION

Copyright 1952, Canada Wide Features Service.

When we landed at Omsk at 7 a.m., the official in charge of passenger landings told us that we would be there for 12 hours, leaving at 7 p.m.

Although we were anxious to reach our final destination, the news that we would spend 12 hours of full daylight in Omsk was an unexpected and wonderful windfall. We would get a look at a real Siberian town.

In Siberia, the airports are equipped with sleeping accommodations for travellers. So the woman airport director opened up her best bedrooms for us, giving us the chance of 12 hours of uninterrupted sleep if we wanted it, or the alternative of resting and visiting the town.

SEE OMSK AND DIE

We shaved in a hurry and ate a quick breakfast and at 8:30 we were ready for a look at Omsk. We were two Algerians, a Frenchman, a New Zealander and two Canadians, all crossing Siberia for the second time. Four of us were Communists; two were not. We all filed out to the front of the airport only to be met by the director with the news that the bus for Omsk had just left.

"When will it be back?"

"I don't know, but it will take at least two hours."

So we waited, playing chess to while the time away. An hour and a half later, we trooped over to the office of the airport director again.

"Is the bus back yet?"

"No, it won't be back until tonight."

"A taxi? Omsk is quite far away you know. It's 25 kilometers. And the river is crossed by a floating bridge. And it's frozen over at this time of year. In the winter, you have to cross over the ice. If you go to Omsk, you can't be sure of getting back."

We went back and played two more games of chess and then we decided that we just had to see Omsk.

SWIM IF NECESSARY

"Madame, we're ready to swim back, if necessary, but we want to see Omsk. Besides, the town is only 10 kilometers away, not 25. And the weather is mild. There is no danger of the river freezing over. Call a taxi for us and we'll pay whatever is necessary."

"You can't leave. I've just received a telegram from Moscow. Instead of staying 12 hours in Omsk, you'll only be staying four or five hours. I'm waiting for another telegram which will definitely fix your departure time. So I can't let you go off because I don't know when you must leave here."

It was really worth watching the speed and coolness with which she invented her extraordinary excuses. But even more extraordinary was the way our four Communists swallowed, or seemed to swallow, the whole story with perfect resignation.

Since Omsk seemed to be out of the question, we decided to try, at least, to see something other than the airport. We pulled on our overcoats and started off. There was only one road leading out of the airport and it was closed by a barrier with a uniformed guard on duty. I let the Communists go ahead to see if they would have the nerve to try to get through.

They walked forward slowly with one eye on the barrier and one eye on me, waiting for a few wisecracks. Then, slowly and ashamed, they stopped about 30 feet from the barrier, embarrassed at the prospect of being turned back in full view of a dirty capitalist.

HEARD BABY CRYING

Eyewitness Thought Burning Plane Meteor

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 28 (AP)—"The plane flew right over my head. I thought I could feel the heat from it. I thought it was a meteor," Art Getchman, 18, gave that graphic description of the after-midnight crash of a military transport plane near McChord Air Force Base.

Getchman said he was driving home in a heavy fog when the plane, aflame, flashed overhead and crashed in a barren field.

"The engine on the left side was aflame before the crash," he said. "I couldn't hear the motors; it was just a big whoosh."

"When I got to the spot there were dead people lying around. I saw three men alive. All were military. One was hardly breathing. I could hear a baby crying. I didn't see it."

"All the victims were wearing Alaska-type clothing. Some had fur-lined shoes."

Getchman said that in the heavy fog he did not see the outline of the plane itself. "The fire seemed to be underneath it."

"I rushed to the crash. I didn't hear any explosion."

"Wreckage was scattered everywhere. There were little spots of fire all over the field."

DISTILLERY HEAD ON PROBE STAND

A. L. McLennan Says Law Can't Stop Liquor Outlet Tie-Ins

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP) — A prominent British Columbia distillery man believes it is impossible to draft a law which would effectively block distillers and brewers from controlling the retail outlets of liquor.

A. L. McLennan, president of United Distillers of Canada Ltd., told the B.C. liquor inquiry commission Thursday that wherever a law has been written to control the outlet of retail liquor, it has been broken.

He said that in other parts of Canada, distillers controlled many outlets for liquor regardless of what the law might be.

DOESN'T WORK

"In the United States there is a law against it," Mr. McLennan said. "But it doesn't work."

"The law says the distillers cannot own any part of a wholesale or retail outlet for liquor, but they do. Who is to stop them financing under another name?"

Mr. McLennan was questioned at length on this point by George Home, a member of the commission set up to inquire into the best methods of providing for sale of liquor by the glass, approved by British Columbians in a summer plebiscite.

Mr. Home: "Are you suggesting, Mr. McLennan, that it is practically impossible, very difficult, to write a law which would keep distillery interests or brewery interests either directly or indirectly out of controlling of those various outlets?"

Mr. McLennan: "There is a law in the United States and it doesn't work. Mr. Home: 'There is a law against murder in Vancouver, British Columbia and Canada, but there are murders taking place, Mr. Home.'"

Mr. Home: "You feel it is almost impossible to write a law that can't be circumvented by people who wish to circumvent it in this particular instance?"

"I won't say circumvent—they break it," Mr. McLennan replied. "If they can't circumvent it, they break it. It happens every day."

The commission resumes hearings at Victoria Monday and will return to Vancouver next Wednesday.

Birth of Septuplets Report Proves Hoax

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 18 (AP)—Police Capt. Salamanca today announced the reported birth of septuplets to a Chilean woman Thursday night was a "vulgar hoax."

The report of the births caused great excitement in the Chilean capital. All but one newspaper brought out banner headlines in extra editions to tell their readers the story. High government officials hurried to the clinic where the mother and her babies supposedly had been taken.

PLAN PROTEST

Angry newspaper men who had spent the night in front of the clinic said they planned to protest to Chile's new president, Gen. Carlos Ibanez, because Salamanca badly verified the report and later denounced it.

Salamanca said the authors of the hoax had sought to gain publicity for a spring festival. They picked the figure seven to represent seven candidates for queen of the festival, he said.

Salamanca did not immediately announce the identity of the culprits.

Some newspaper men said that police aided the perpetrators of the hoax, which took in even

Cheaper Fags Will Be Sold In Calgary

CALGARY, Nov. 28 (CP)—Twenty American cigarettes to retail at 33 cents may be sold in at least one Calgary grocery chain in the next few weeks.

"We're getting them," a spokesman for Canada Safeway, Ltd., said today. "But we don't know just when they will arrive."

He said the cigarettes would come from eastern Canada but were in short supply there. "They will just send them along if they figure we will take them."

The cigarettes are of a cheaper American make. Three brands, "Crests," "Shirleys" and "Southland" have been retailing in Toronto and it is understood, in Winnipeg.

Exchange Blasts at U.N.

Sessions of United Nations political committee have been highlighted by bitter exchanges between Canadian delegate, Paul Martin, left, and Russia's No. 1 representative, Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, right, Thursday, Martin in urging approval of India's plan for a truce in Korea criticized Vishinsky for his rejection of a "sincere effort to find a solution which would lead to an armistice in Korea." Today the Russian delegate opened his debate against the plan by characterizing Martin as "lapdog." Vishinsky took issue with Martin's defense of the plan and accused the Canadian of indulging in personalities. Meanwhile, the U.N. today pushed toward a vote on the Communist-rejected plan. With U.S. support pledged, its adoption was expected by an overwhelming majority.

LATE-COMERS SOCRED TARGET

Convention Group Will Try to Limit
Offices to Six-Month Party Members

By GORDON FORBES, Times Legislative Reporter

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28—The Social Credit convention, which opened here today, may run into its first squabble when the B.C. Social Credit League's constitution and by-laws come up for review.

A group of old-time Social Crediters, upset about the infiltration of newcomers into important party positions, may try to force an amendment to the constitution which, in effect, would say:

"No person who has been a Social Creditor less than six months can hold office."

Such a proposed amendment may be phrased so that various offices in the party require various lengths of membership. This would have the effect of prohibiting hand-wagon riders, such as ex-Conservatives and ex-Liberals, from gaining positions of control, the old-time Socreds contend.

It is understood an effort was being made in pre-convention strategy talks to iron out this touchy problem. But several Socreds, questioned today, still are not satisfied but would not say definitely if they intended to press the matter on the convention floor.

COMPLAINTS

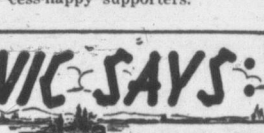

There were also some mild complaints from some delegates that most of today's program is being monopolized by formalities, and that there would be little chance for business discussions.

The resolutions, many of them considered of top importance, and valuable in guidance to the new government, will not be discussed until after 5 p.m., and adjournment of today's session is scheduled for around 6 p.m. Premier W. A. C. Bennett called on 700 cheering delegates to "go back to your ridings and organize as you have never organized before."

Speaking in the banner-decked Georgia Street auditorium to the party's first convention since it formed a government, Premier Bennett declared:

"We don't want 19 seats next time. We want 48. We will be facing the electorate again in a few months and every constituency must be ready."

The premier, when he rose to speak, was greeted with a standing ovation and loud cheering and placard-waving by his success-happy supporters.

Canada'll git out o' th' fog if it goes Social Credit, Bennett sez. Guess he's settin' up as a whether man.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 28 (AP)—A four-engined military plane from Alaska crashed in flames in a field south of here shortly after midnight and 36 of the 39 aboard were dead.

While scattered fires still marked the scene of the post-holiday tragedy, Coroner Larry Amundsen said 36 were dead or missing.

The plane carried servicemen and dependents. The bodies of four babies were among those found scattered at the scene of the disaster.

At least two witnesses to the tragedy said the plane was aflame as it "whooshed" down to a tree-flanked field about a mile from its destination at McChord Air Force Base.

HEAVY FOG

Capt. Jack Beasley, public information officer at McChord, said reports to the base indicated the plane struck a tree while coming in through the heavy fog for a ground-control approach landing.

All but a section of the tail was destroyed in the resulting fire and explosion. Bodies were scattered over 200 feet from the wreckage.

The crash added to the toll of a disastrous three weeks for military transports aviation around the North Pacific rim.

If the death toll stands at 36 in Friday's crash, it makes a total of 198 dead or presumed dead along the arc from Korea to Alaska to McChord and Montana. The total includes 98 on three big transports in Alaska, 55 in two Korea crashes, eight in Montana and eight in a Canadian crash on Vancouver Island.

McChord base reported the transport, a C-54, was circling for an approach to the field when the disaster struck.

NAME SURVIVORS

The manifest listed 13 military passengers, 14 civilians and a crew of seven, Captain Beasley reported. The only known survivors in Tacoma hospitals early today were: Airman Curtis Redd, McChord base, burns; Airman Bobby Wilson, Great Falls, Mont., head injury, internal injuries and burns; an Alaskan boy who was listed as Joseph Icoavitt, eight, broken legs and burns.

First witnesses at the scene said they could hear the heart-rending cries of a baby in the burning wreckage. They were helpless to do anything about it.

Many of the passengers were returning to the U.S. for the year-end holidays. The C-54 left Fairbanks Thursday morning, stopped at Elmendorf base at Anchorage, then flew the 1,400 miles to McChord.

Only the fog kept the plane's occupants from seeing the lights and safety of the big McChord field before the crash.

The crash scene was strewn with personal belongings. There were many packages indicating the passengers had been shopping, possibly for Christmas, before they started the ill-fated flight.

U.S. to Lift Cattle Import Ban March 1

Contingent on No New Foot-Mouth Cases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (AP)—The U.S. Agriculture Department announced today that the American ban on import of Canadian cattle and other livestock and livestock products will be lifted next March 1.

It was imposed Feb. 26 because of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

The department said the lifting of the ban is contingent on no new outbreak of the disease in the interim.

The announcement follows by nearly three months the lifting of a similar ban on Mexican livestock and livestock products because of a serious epidemic in that country.

The department credited strong measures adopted by Canadian officials last February after the outbreak in Saskatchewan with apparently eliminating the disease.

The present ban affects cattle, sheep, other domestic ruminants; swine, and fresh, chilled or frozen beef, veal, mutton, lamb and pork. A ruminant is a cud-chewing animal.

A department spokesman said the lifting of the ban also will permit U.S. hunters to bring their kills back across the borders into this country.

Steel Bill Passes in U.K. House

LONDON, Nov. 28 (CP)—The Conservative government easily won the decisive battle to return Britain's nationalized iron and steel industry—the third largest in the world—to private owners, but with some state control.

By a vote of 305 to 269 the House of Commons Thursday night, gave second reading—approval in principle—to a bill that would dissolve the 1949 steel nationalization law of Clement Attlee's former Labor government.

The majority of 36 votes was the Conservatives' biggest at this session on a major issue. Six Liberals voted with the Tories.

STAID TORONTO GOES BERSERK

Mad Westerners Greeted by East As Grey Cup Fever Sweeps Nation

BY W. R. WHEATLEY

TORONTO, Nov. 28 (CP)—Conservative Toronto began to jump with football fever practically at the crack of dawn today and when the big Grey Cup special pulled in several hours late from Edmonton the delirium was on.

Early arrivals came in by regular trains from the west to join others who had flown in.

Outside Union Station shivering peddlers were on the job hawking green-and-gold ribbons and pennants and miniature Grey Cups.

Hotel lobbies became alive and everybody talked football. Edmonton Eskimos' colors were everywhere. There were cowboy and cowgirl hats and big "I Like Eaks" buttons on gaudy mackinaws.

The crowds milled about, waiting patiently when word got around that the 12-car Grey Cup special was late. Then westerners and easterners alike converged on the station.

About noon the train announcer bawled out dramatically over the publicaddress system: "Attention, please. The Grey Cup special has arrived."

FRANK FILCHOK
... Hopes Ride on Him

A roar went out from the 1,000 persons crowded about the lower level of the station. Up above Mayor Allan Lamport was welcoming the new arrivals.

On hand was an official welcome from Toronto Argonauts, dressed in full football regalia, helmet and all. He carried a sign: "Welcome Eaks."

A bagpipe band played as the happy western fans—from Winnipeg, Regina and other points as well as Edmonton—pranced about and formed a parade.

The marchers swung out the main doors to the street and crossed on to the Royal York Hotel, draped in front with a big green-and-gold welcome sign.

The lobby became a bedlam as the crowds whooped and swarmed about.

A chant went up "heigh-ho, the Eskimos." One woman screamed: "A horse; if we only had a horse."

From nowhere a girl pipe band appeared and a grand parade started in the lobby, jammed through revolving doors and burst into Front Street. Colors streaming, the paraders headed for uptown.

While they carried on with their big whoop-to-do the Eskimo team they came a couple of thousand miles to see was only a few blocks away, at Maple Leaf arena. There coach Frankie Filchok was giving his men their final tune-up before they meet Argos Saturday in the classic.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Down in our district, which, by the memory of the oldest inhabitant, hasn't produced a mayor of Victoria, we're getting ready for the elections. Our campaign's going to take the voters' breaths away. For sheer razzle-dazzle there hasn't been anything like it.

Mind you, it's based on fundamentals, but there'll be so many trimmings you won't notice them. This is going to be like the passing attack of Southern Methodist when they were blazing the sky-trails of American football. It'll make the neon of the downtown night scene look as drab as the Cougars' record this season.

Space prohibits—as they say in editorials—a full statement of our plans. But you can have a peek at one or two.

Before you do, these are the fundamentals: our goal—to get elected and take over the city council; our modus operandi (that's how we'll do it)—discuss indirectly only anything to do with the city's business. You have to concentrate on out-of-town affairs if you want to make the grade.

Our platform? That's secret, but we'll let you in on a plank or two.

We start with a big public works program, but it isn't going to cost anything. It's a bridge from the Oak Bay golf links to Trial Island. Sure, that's in Oak Bay, but what's the difference? That Port Renfrew breakwater wasn't exactly in the city limits either.

Bridge to Pleasure

We throw the span over the narrows to Little Trial, put across another to reach Big Trial, construct an eight-lane super-highway to the point of the island and there we build the biggest, gaudiest, noisiest dive north of Las Vegas.

It'll all be strictly legal. It will be the first structure of its kind after the new liquor laws come into force, and it will be something to point to. How you point may depend on how you voted on the plebiscite.

It won't cost the citizens a cent. We'll charge tolls on both bridges.

And if you don't think it will provide revenue, don't bid on the gambling or booze concessions when we have our joint ready for operation. Why, it'll coin money. That $14 million civic debt will melt down like a kid's ice-cream cone.

Now senior governments may get a bit sticky about it, but we have that figured, too. Let 'em get sticky. We'll secede. If the city and municipalities don't like it, we'll declare the region unorganized territory. If the province objects, we'll get out of British Columbia and take Trial with us. That shouldn't be hard. We'll just put a movable section in the bridge and lift it like Johnson Street. If the federal government protests, we'll ask Ottawa if it has read the terms of Confederation recently. At the same time we'll hire a lawyer to look into the terms of Confederation.

If he can't find anything there, we'll turn him loose on that "Free Port" issue. He ought to be able to locate something to put the fear of lost revenue into the Canadian Parliament.

Making Like Rudolph

We're ready to make some concessions to the federal capital, too. At present it maintains a light and foghorn on Trial. With the red noses and noise we'll create there, on a 24-hour-a-day basis, the lighthouse can be eliminated. We'll be a beacon in the dark to lead the wanderer. We'll be a big noise in the fog to keep shipping off the rocks.

There won't be any excuse for tourists to find Victoria dull when our Trial Island Development Association—municipally operated with unlimited liabilities—gets under way. They won't be getting off the island in a hurry. We'll keep them till their last cent is spent. Then we'll lower the draw bridge and let them boom out.

Razzle-dazzle? Why the city's never seen anything like we plan. When we take over, there won't be any more debts, there won't be any more dullness. There may not be any more citizens even. So what? We'll save on the cost of schools and other municipal services.

Allies' Firepower Forces Reds Back Off Sniper Ridge

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 28 (UP)—United Nations artillery smashed a Chinese attack on Sniper Ridge early today but to the west the Communists recaptured an advance post from outnumbered Allied defenders.

A squad of Reds advancing in the darkness towards Rocky Point, a hill finger jutting eastward from Sniper, in an apparent test of South Korean defenses, were spotted by United Nations big guns. They pumped shell after shell at them, forcing the Reds to break and flee back to their own positions.

Northwest of Yonchon, U.N. night raiders ripped into a Chinese outpost, surprising the Reds into a withdrawal. Then the Chinese mustered a 200-man counter-attack and charged up the hill in a violent assault.

The outnumbered Allied unit pulled off the position and returned to its own lines. The action took about 30 minutes.

Churchill Says P.M.'s Conference Is Not 'Crisis Meeting'

Canada Lets U.S. Fighters To Base Here

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP)—The Canadian government, after some hesitation, has authorized United States fighter squadrons to operate in Canada in peacetime.

This latest step in the integration of the air defense systems of the two countries meets U.S. wishes to have elbow room north of the border for defense of U.S. cities and installations and for training for that defense.

The reason for Canada's hesitation is her own special emphasis on a fighter force as the key to the defense program. It struck some persons in authority as anomalous that a foreign power should send fighter squadrons into a country that is plunging heavily on fighter squadrons itself—and sending nearly half of them out of the country to share in the defense of Europe.

These qualms were overcome, however, apparently with arguments that any U.S. squadrons that do come will have the same purpose as the radar stations that country is building on Canadian soil—the defense of U.S. cities and installations.

Canada Evidence Act Gets Second Reading

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (BUP)—

The Senate stood adjourned today until next Monday after giving second reading to an amendment to the Canada Evidence Act which would permit photostatic copies of documents to be entered in courts as evidence if they had been notarized by a commissioner of oaths.

As the act now stands, documents can be entered only if they have been notarized by a notary public.

The amendment was sent to the banking and commerce committee for further study before being given third and final reading.

The prime ministers or finance ministers of eight Commonwealth countries, plus representatives of the colonies, are here for the financial and economic conference.

Prime Minister Churchill, in a brief welcome address Thursday night, said they are about to start a planning conference—not a crisis meeting.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada said the meeting should provide a "most valuable and comprehensive opportunity" to explore ways of expanding trade.

Today the delegates assemble at the Treasury Building to draw up a master plan to strengthen the pound sterling sufficiently to make it freely exchangeable with the dollar. It is hoped the new program will help stem dollar-draining wounds.

A conference with U.S. representatives to facilitate world trade is expected to follow the present conference.

Represented are Australia, Britain, Canada, Ceylon, India, New Zealand, Pakistan, South Africa and the colonies. Canada is the only participant outside the sterling area.

Only Premiers Jawaharlal Nehru of India and Daniel Malan of South Africa are missing from the line-up of prime ministers. The two pleaded pressure of business at home and delegated their finance ministers to act for them.

TORY MEMBER ASKS CLEAN-UP OF HYDE PARK, PADDINGTON

LONDON, Nov. 28 (CP)—Robert Allan, Conservative Member of Parliament, has called for a clean-up of what he calls London's two black spots—Hyde Park and the Paddington area.

In the grassy acres of Hyde Park, Allan told a service club Rotary there was behaviour unmatched in "even the most primitive and savage society."

He said it was impossible to take any respectable person through the park without feeling a sense of shame. "We are all men and women of the world, and I do not suppose any of us believe that it can be entirely stamped out," he added. "There can, however, be no one who does not condemn the way this practice is flaunted today." Allan urged a clean-up in time for Coronation year.

WEIRD RAIL ACCIDENT

Woman Killed When Hit By Man's Flying Body

CONCORD, N.C., Nov. 28 (AP)—A Southern Railway passenger train struck a man and hurled his body into a crowd of people with such force Thursday night that one other person was killed and three were injured.

Dead in the weird accident were Walter Wilson Nance, 43, and Mrs. Estelle Boone. Injured were Charles E. Ellington, Ann Tucker and Mrs. Minnie Love. Coroner Cliff Brown gave this version of the accident: Nance attempted to cross double tracks. He was watching for a north-bound freight and failed to see a south-bound passenger train. He was hit by the passenger train and his body thrown about 25 feet into a group of people waiting to cross the tracks.

The impact of his body crashing into the crowd was so great it killed Mrs. Boone, injured Ellington critically, and the other two victims less severely.

Dr. J. Ogden said the drug, trypsin, might have helped during the early stages of the illness, but he now held little hope for recovery of the world-famous poliomyelitis pioneer.

The plane carrying a shipment of the new drug from New York will land Saturday at Brisbane.

Post office officials will meet the plane and will waive customs regulations, so the drug can be rushed the 75 miles here.

Meanwhile, all Australian sources are being searched for a supply of trypsin. Philanthropist Sir Edward Halstrom has a plane and a car standing by to rush the drug from any part of the country.

Rail-Air Parity Seen Causing Greater Air Travel

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP)—The man on the street may take to the air in greater numbers than at present. The reason? Air fares in Canada may soon be down with rail fares.

That is the prediction by Hugh Main, general traffic manager of Canadian Pacific Air Lines.

Guided Missiles Claim Declared 'Cruel Hoax'

U.S. Navy Charged With Pulling 'Publicity Stunt'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. (AP)—President Arthur F. Kelly of the U.S. Air Force Association charged today the navy pulled off the "publicity stunt of the year" last September in reporting the combat use of guided missiles.

Writing in Air Force magazine, an official publication, Kelly cited news stories he said described as "the first take-off of a guided missile in actual combat" the bombing of North Korean targets by unmanned, electronically controlled fighter planes.

RAISED FALSE HOPES

Kelly called this a "cruel hoax to play on the American family" and said it raised false hopes that the age of pushbutton warfare had arrived.

He said the U.S. Air Force used unguided radio-controlled bombers against German targets during the Second World War and flew them twice as far with nine times the bombload as the navy did in its launching Sept. 5 from the U.S. Carrier Boxer.

Kelly said the navy censored from the original news reports delayed until Sept. 17 the designation of the aircraft used as an out-moded Grumman Hellcat, and substituted the term "guided missile."

Air Force magazine's managing editor, John F. Loosbrook, writing in the same issue, said "Exercise Mainbrace" last September cast grave doubts on the effectiveness of aircraft carriers.

SERIOUS FLAWS

Loosbrook said the manoeuvre, conducted off Scandinavia by ships of the North Atlantic Treaty countries, was designed partly to show carriers could adequately defend N.A.T.O.'s northern flank. Instead, he said, "Mainbrace exposed serious flaws in our whole philosophy of naval warfare, flaws which will be very difficult to explain away."

The operation, Loosbrook wrote, demonstrated "carriers' vulnerability to mechanical failures, submarines and air attack and bad weather."

As if in reply, meanwhile, the official naval aviation news declared the aircraft carrier is essential to control of the sea.

Lacking guns and ammunition, natives of the Marquesas Islands in the Pacific still hunt wild cattle with harpoons.

C.I.O. MEETS FOR SHOWDOWN ON SELECTION OF NEW CHIEF

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 28 (AP)—Delegates to the 14th C.I.O. convention gathered here today for a showdown on selection of a new president.

The task of picking a new chief to fill the post left vacant by the death of Philip Murray might lead to an open and public fight. Top C.I.O. leaders have been meeting this week in New York and Washington in an attempt to make a choice.

So far, they have remained deadlocked. The only avowed contenders for the organization's top spot are Walter P. Reuther, president of the Auto Workers' Union and Allan S. Haywood, who has the support of the steelworkers' union.

Fairfield Choir Sings On C.B.C. Tonight

Rounding out the half hour of sacred selections will be Purcell's "Rejoice in the Lord," and "Comfort, Oh Lord," by Crutch.

The choir is under the direction of Charles Palmer, a former Windsor Chapel chorister, who chose to make his home in Victoria following discharge from the R.A.F. after the Second World War.

The program is being produced by Jack Bingham of Vancouver, who arrived here today to arrange technical details.

Chief Justice's Story of Pioneers Corrects History

NANAIMO, Nov. 28.—The ship Harpooner and other vessels preceded the Princess Royal to Nanaimo harbor by several years, Chief Justice Gordon Sloan said at the Nanaimo Pioneers' Association annual banquet Wednesday night.

He discussed the early history of the B.C. coast, leading up to the arrival of the Princess Royal with the first families for the new settlement, generally recognized as the time of founding of the city.

He said he did not know "what strange alchemy of mind, heart and spirit" had brought the pioneer settlers to Nanaimo and Vancouver Island.

"I can only stand in humility at their greatness," he said. Chief Justice Sloan is the great-grandson of John McGregor, who came around Cape Horn in the Harpooner, and grandson of Mrs. Thomas Grahlin, first white girl born in Nanaimo.

Merchants in Good Response To Work-Week Questionnaire

Victoria merchants have responded well to a questionnaire asking their opinion on the five-day and six-day operating week.

Five-day week action committee, formed by a group of store owners and clerks interested in establishing the 40-hour week in retail stores, sponsored the questionnaire.

"Although the forms were sent out on Tuesday we have already had excellent response," said Peter MacEwan, chairman of the group. "They have given us a lot of information that should be of help to everyone in retail trade."

The survey has been confined to the city alone, he said. "We want to co-operate with storekeepers," he said. "If stores want to stagger our holiday by employing extra help it is all right with us. If they prefer to work with their present staffs and operate five days, that is all right, too."

'Trunk Murderess' Escapes for Sixth Time

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 28 (AP)—The out-again-in-again trunk murderess, Winnie Ruth Judd, today after her sixth escape from the state hospital for the insane.

Red-haired Winnie squirmed out through a sawed window screen Thursday night.

With her customary craftiness, she left nothing to show just how she circumvented the many precautions taken to keep her in.

It was her second escape this year from the hospital where she has been confined since 1933. In 1931 she killed two girl friends and shipped their dismembered bodies to Los Angeles as baggage. She was sentenced to be hanged but was found insane hours before she was scheduled to go to the gallows.

Her latest flight set off a frantic search not only for 48-year-old Winnie but for supposed accomplices.

"She had help some way or other to make the escape," said Dr. M. W. Conway, hospital superintendent.

Dr. Conway said this is how Winnie got out:

About 7:30 p.m. she complained of a headache and said she was going to take a bath. She went into the bathroom, carrying a robe. Fifteen minutes later an attendant looked in and she was gone.

A hole 15 inches square gaped in the heavy mesh window screen. The glass window had been cranked outward.

The window was nearly six feet from the ground.

"The sawing was an expert job," Dr. Conway said. "It wasn't something she did to herself."

Sheriff's Lieut. Frank Mitchell said: "Someone must have helped her to the ground as she came out the window. The hole in the screen was so small she would have had to wiggle out."

Dr. Conway said that after her last escape Mrs. Judd was placed in the hospital's strongest ward but even those facilities were inadequate. He said he was going to ask the legislature to provide funds to erect a building for a full-security criminal ward.

The Historian's Dream

MR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE, THE most distinguished living historian of past events has lately given his forecast of man's future. Writing in Look Magazine (a curious forum for such a scholar) Mr. Toynbee says that "in our generation we are headed towards an inevitable union . . . a union of our western community and then, beyond that, sooner or later, towards a union of all mankind."

Thus the man who has charted the birth and death of all previous civilizations now returns to man's old dream of a new civilization, universal, peaceful and governed by law and not by national sovereignty.

At the moment, on the surface at least, the prospects of that dream seem less hopeful than ever. Current civilization is rent by a deep civil war, cutting across national boundaries, and over this quarrel hangs the specter of a war which could destroy civilization altogether.

Nevertheless, looking below the surface, Mr. Toynbee sees another process under way.

The western nations, he says, are only a small minority of the human family, about a fifth. This minority can no longer isolate itself from the majority because technology has annihilated distance and "everybody in the world is now living within point-black atomic bomb range of everyone else." And the minority, which formerly held a monopoly of power, is losing it because western technology is being rapidly acquired by the great majority, as we have good reason to know in such places as Korea.

In the face of these facts, Mr. Toynbee believes, it would be "suicidal" for the west to remain divided in some 40 sovereign states, little islands in a dark and swarming sea. The essential task of the West, therefore, on which its survival will depend, is to achieve some new kind of organic political unity, above that national sovereignty which is not only obsolete but suicidal.

Mr. Toynbee is too much of a historian to expect such miracles overnight. He knows that societies grow and are not invented. But if the society now needed is to grow it must have a "growing point." He thinks this growing point is to be found in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which must become much more than a military alliance.

While sovereign governments in the alliance are managing the immediate problem of military defence, standing committees of the legislatures of the allied nations should meet in regular session to build common policies, not only military but economic and social.

In a restricted field that is what the members of the Schuman Plan are trying to do in Europe in the joint management of the European steel and coal industries. Mr. Toynbee would extend this experiment at first among all the nations of N.A.T.O. and then further afield as sovereign states learn to work together.

On this foundation of day-to-day experience a common legislature could evolve to legislate not on local matters but on the great questions of joint concern—a kind of international federalism. Then one by one other nations would be drawn inevitably into this new parliament of man.

So far all this is a dream only. But everything of importance in human affairs has begun as a dream. The present system of vast sovereign states, each above any international law, was a dream only three or four centuries ago. Today this system is indeed obsolete and, in asserting the doctrine of absolute sovereignty, can destroy all sovereignty in the suicide of general war. That precisely is why the new Soviet empire is the greatest anachronism and the Russian revolution the greatest reaction in all history.

At all events Mr. Toynbee is unquestionably right in his alternatives—the world will be united eventually in freedom or by conquest simply because, with modern techniques, it is too interdependent to remain in fragments. Or, failing to unite, it will destroy itself.

More Than Wood in Those Trees

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S CHIEF forester, Dr. C. D. Orchard, struck a familiar chord in his address to the Canadian Institute of Forestry and the Society of American Foresters in Montreal last week.

People, he said, "are no longer satisfied with trees to meet their industrial needs. They are demanding forests to protect their watersheds, to frame their roadsides, to clothe their scenery. They want trees to foster fishing and to sustain and shelter wildlife. Today people have learned about recreation and they demand trees and forests for recreational use."

That point of view is amply illustrated by different groups which have objected to industrial invasion of scenic beauty spots. It is part of the argument raised against damming Butte Lake. It extends to criticism of the procedure being followed in flooding the lakeland of Tweedsmuir Park. And it is reflected in the South Vancouver Island Rangers' case against selective logging of the Sooke watershed. Innumerable instances might be cited of public reaction to the destruction of beauty spots through logging. The recent indignation over operations across Saanich Arm from the Malahat is but one.

Dr. Orchard, in his address, expressed

British Columbia's appreciation of recreational use of forests, noting the acreage which had been set aside in the province for parks in the last 40 years.

It should be noted that such reservations do not prohibit other resource uses in park regions. When logging or mining can be conducted without injury to the parks value of territory, those operations are permitted. That is sensible and economically desirable.

On the other hand, in view of the increasing public recognition of forest recreational values, question arises over the adequacy of protection now given to parks. What chance has a park if needs for hydro development are pressed on a government? What weight is given to the case for preservation of scenic beauties for future generations if immediate demands for water power are presented?

Obviously the hydro needs of any area deserve earnest and serious consideration. When that resource use conflicts violently with recreational and scenic values, how much do the latter count? Incidents of recent months in British Columbia have left the public wondering. Mere creation of park reserves seems of little value if they can be liquidated by the stroke of a pen. The issue is one which deserves the consideration of the legislature.

Wine Up in Yukon

AMONG THE EXHIBITS PREPARED for the liquor inquiry board is an interesting letter from Mr. L. Higgins, superintendent of liquor control in Yukon Territory. He says that for the last five years the Yukon liquor stores have stocked American wines.

Thus the embargo against these products maintained by all the provinces of Canada has been broken in a territory under federal government control. The federal government cannot compel the provinces to buy and sell American wines, but at least, within its own jurisdiction, it refuses to break its trade agreement with the United States, and the people of the Yukon are allowed to drink what wines they desire. They are not compelled, like most Canadians, to drink what a provincial government decides is good for them (and good for the local wine industries). The Yukon inhabitants are to be envied.

Mr. Higgins also states in his letter of last October 29 that "I was notified in July last that the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland are now purchasing American wines and some Bourbon whiskeys and it would seem to me that all provinces will soon follow their example."

If this is true the old embargo may perhaps be breaking down. But perhaps Mr. Higgins is too optimistic. There is no sign so far that the government of British Columbia intends to let the people here drink what they please. So far the liquor interests have been strong enough to maintain their protected position.

However, the inquiry board has been given the facts by several witnesses, it has agreed to receive such representations and it is thus morally bound to make some recommendation on the subject of the embargo. It is to be hoped that the forthcoming report will urge an end of this absurdity and that the government will carry out such a recommendation without further delay.

Democratic Right To Be Foolish

THE ACTION OF 40 ALBERTA University professors and associates in telegraphing their sympathy to Governor Stevenson following his recent defeat by Gen. Eisenhower has been called a gross piece of impertinence by some Canadian newspapers. Inasmuch as an equivalent expression from a group of United States university professors would be considered similarly by people of this country, that term may be justified.

Certainly the Alberta professors were foolish to intrude in such a manner into the American political scene. They have asked for a rebuff, and Canadian newspapers have given it to them.

It would be a mistake, however, to say that the professors, by themselves, represent the opinion of the University of Alberta. They spoke for themselves, though they were a group. Surely there is no occasion here to call for strict reprisals from the Alberta government and the board of governors of the University.

Under Canada's democratic system, haven't the professors of this country's universities, like all other citizens, an inalienable right to make asses of themselves?

Chips

By DAVID BROCK

LORD DUNSANY came out with an interesting theory the other day. He says that while we may have evolved from the apes, we are now going back to become more and more like apes. For example, much modern poetry is obviously about half-way back to the apes already . . .

a true ape couldn't write it, but a true man wouldn't touch the stuff. And thus with music, painting, and many other things. It isn't only the artists who are going back; ward, but the people who accept and never-ence them. The process is so rapid that we should be back in the fives in about another fifty years. Only, you mustn't tell people about it. They resented it enough when they were told they were descended from apes. They'll be even crosser to be told they're going back.

Talking of modern poetry, I was telling a modern poet the other day that so much contemporary work appears to be just aliphatic notes and not a finished product. It is rough jottings on the back of an envelope, so to speak. He denied this. He says he works very hard to attain what he thinks is an easy, familiar style. I am trying my best to believe this . . . if it really is hard work, I suppose it keeps him out of other mischief . . . the one excuse for the stuff.

HIDDEN TREASURES

A friend of mine was passing through the rather pleasant little town of Hope the other Sunday morning, and she felt she'd like to go to church. She asked at a service station where she might find the Anglican church. The man said he didn't rightly know . . . he'd lived there only a very few years. So she asked at some sort of shop that happened to be open on Sunday, and the woman there said the same thing . . . she had just moved to Hope herself a few years back and didn't know her way round yet. If its Chamber of Commerce will forgive me, one thing I like about Hope is its reposed air. But I hadn't known it was quite THAT sleepy.

WHO DUNIT?

An American professor has decided that the works of Shakespeare were really written by the poet Marlowe. Marlowe, it seems, was not really killed in that tavern brawl at the age of 29 or whatever it was. No, the killing was a hoax to enable him to disappear. After which, he wrote Shakespeare's plays for him. This is a nasty knock for the Baconians. Having proved that Shakespeare couldn't have written his own plays, their arguments will be pinched by the Marlowe cult.

You know, what really amuses me about all these proofs which show Shakespeare as a very dull and ordinary fellow . . . what makes me roar with laughter . . . is the way Shakespeare fooled his friends. They found his table-talk as brilliant and enchanting as any of his writings. It must take some sort of talent to be able to fool a man like Ben Jonson in such a manner. You've got to give Wild Bill Shakespeare credit for that, anyhow.

MORE ABOUT PIGS' NESTS

I am even more ignorant than I feared I was. I may remember that a few weeks ago I was laughing at a story about a dear old English sow who ran away from home in order to build herself a huge nest out of rushes. And I found this all the more extraordinary because it wasn't her first litter (or farrow) . . . most whins, in animals and women too, come with the firstborn, or so I hear.

Well, sir, there wasn't anything funny about that story after all. I have it on the authority of an English professor (and a fellow of the Royal Society at that) that the pig, unlike cattle and horses, is a nest-building animal. If more farmers realized this and gave their sows plenty of nest-making material, fewer piglets would die during their first week of life. For the first week the newborn pig catches cold easily. The old sow in my story knew all this, and was getting sick of her master not providing enough bedding, that's all. I apologize to her.

MORE ABOUT WILD LIFE

A young nephew, aged 8, has sent me the following story:

"BABY ELVINT"

Once this was a Baby Elvint who codd many tricks in the circles, he was only a baby Elvint. But he was a Elvint. That do tricks. "The End." I am very fond of that story. Especially the reminder that a baby Elvint is still an Elvint for all that.

I am very fond of all fantastic spelling, really. A little girl I know, aged 9, recently had a notable triumph when she managed to spell "bicycle" as "bickely." This was miles better than her 7-year-old brother, who could only spell it "biscol." He was pretty good at another word, though. He spelt "Honey-moon" as "hunemoon."

I.O.D.E. THANKS

On behalf of the members of the Navy League and Alden Hamber Chapters, I.O.D.E., I would like to express to the merchants of Greater Victoria our thanks for their generosity in donating so many wonderful prizes for our recent "Penny Sale." It is only through such generosity that the sale is made possible.

We would also like to thank Mr. Elliott Brown, manager of the Odeon Theatre and his staff for their wholehearted co-operation; Lt. Col. W. Mosedale, Officer Commanding, Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) for the loan of tables from the Armouries; The Daily Colonist; The Victoria Daily Times; the sponsors of various radio programs for spot ads; Mr. Al. Collins of C.J.V.I. and Mr. T. O'Neill of CKDA, and all who in any way contributed towards our "Penny Sale."

(MISS) MARGARET D. MACNEILL, Secretary, "Penny Sale" Committee.

LIQUOR AND HOSPITALS

May I be permitted to add a letter to your "Vox Populi" re the momentous liquor question? Some of the letters I read in your paper on this subject are amusing; e.g., one neurotic female mentions wrecked homes, etc., caused by liquor; another man quotes the Bible, something about bottles—which made me wonder whether bottles were invented in those ancient days.

The sanest article I read in your paper a few days ago was one suggesting the British method of pubs. I would say that the present system has been in vogue so long that a change will come as a severe shock! I doubt if there are many who would recognize a vintage wine when they meet it—if they ever do!

If the law permits liquor with meals, there will be many surprises—the liquor will cost more than the meal—say with one's lunch, one-half bottle of Burgundy and a liqueur at the end—try it and see what you have to pay.

My old grandfather was a three-bottle man and died of old age at 90, enjoying his liquor and cigar to the end. Those days are gone, never to return, perhaps for the best—who knows?

Now comes another, on which many letters are written—I mean hospital insurance administration, which at the present time appears to be unsatisfactory. I would suggest that it requires a very clever independent administrative brain to solve this question and put it on a satisfactory basis—which brain has, unfortunately, not been found as yet. Let us hope it will be.

OBSERVER.

CATS AND BIRDS

I would like to say to all the people that are writing to the newspaper being sorry that some boys have killed a cat that the boys maybe saw him catching a bird and got mad at him.

Here there are many cats who come in my garden and steal the birds which I feed and make happy. If the people that own these robbers keep them in their own garden maybe boys would not throw stones at them and they would not steal my birds.

Everybody likes birds, not cats always. So all cats should be sent away, everybody feed birds for friends.

I like to hear birds singing in days. Nobody likes cats singing in night when you are needing to go to sleep.

ABOMINATION

Symbolic of evil catastrophe is the presence of the "Red" Dean of Canterbury who uses the pulpit of Canterbury Cathedral to propagate Communist doctrine, which abomination is full of denunciations of the Christian religion. For instance, a lecture recently delivered under the auspices of the Moscow Society for the Dissemination of Scientific and Political Knowledge begins:

"The Communist ethic is the exact opposite of the religious ethic. They are as incompatible as freedom and slavery, truth and falsehood, light and darkness. Communism is the great banner of the struggle for the liberation of the working class, the working people, from slavery and exploitation; religion constitutes an ideology for justifying and preserving slavery and exploitation."

Canada has its Red Dean counterpart in the person of Dr. James Endicott. It passes all understanding that a supposedly free people should be subject to the poisonous spewings broadcast by men such as they under the cloak of religion and under the protection of that vague term "freedom of speech."

Pray, what are the boundaries of that idiom, anyway? We would like to know. Something incomparably more important is at stake than civil liberties. Not only does it bring discredit and ridicule on the church and inflict irreparable damage on the Christian religion, but it seriously aggravates the national "Red" peril. Is there no way of rooting out this fifth column?

Pretty Confident

Newspaper reports say that although the Board of Transport Commissioners has not as yet given its ruling on the B.C. Telephone Company's application for a 100 per cent increase in its pay telephone toll, the company already has a number of 10-cent pay telephones installed in business buildings in the city. At first I believed this was the most astonishing instance of public utility arrogance I had heard of in my 69 years of life in my native country. However, I am informed that in all its applications to the board for rate increases the company has never once been refused, or indeed had one of its requests even whittled slightly. Perhaps the directing powers felt their expectations were so firmly based that they were fully justified in making the outlay for adjustment of the many pay telephones in Victoria and district.

Nov. 28, 1892—The fall assizes were opened this morning. Mr. Justice Crease is presiding and Gordon Hunter is crown prosecutor. Two petit jurymen who failed to appear were fined $20 each.

Nov. 28, 1912—Hockey followers learned today that Dubbie Kerr, who has been the sensation of the Ottawa club in the N.H.A. for the past two years, will play with Victoria this winter.

Nov. 28, 1932—Thousands of Victorians saw an autogyro for the first time yesterday when one piloted here from Seattle by King Baird made several hops from Gordon Head.

Trees

By R. LUKIN JOHNSTON

DURING the last few week ends, I have looked out of my windows and have seen spirals of smoke arising in all directions. The tidy householder was burning his leaves!

Now I know that the good gardener makes a compost heap, but here in Victoria, the leaves are multitudinous, and something has to be done about them. In my own case, a compost heap would soon be larger than my house.

Let us for a few moments forget about leaves, and think about trees. Do you like them? Most of us do, and accept them as part of our everyday life. Have you ever thought of what it would mean to be deprived of them?

Some of you have lived on the prairies, and have experienced the hunger and longing to see a few trees. I knew a splendid pioneer who moved from a very beautiful part of England to live in Saskatchewan. She told me that she used to get the most desperate longing to see some trees, and that occasionally her husband would drive her 20 miles, where she could feast her eyes, and her soul, on a small clump of trees.

It is difficult for us here to understand this, we who are lucky enough to live on Vancouver Island, where all around us we have a glorious symphony of color in our trees. Every day we are reminded that lovers of trees have been responsible for naming some of our streets—chestnut, alder, pine, arbutus, birch, ash, laburnum, and there are many others.

SOOTHING

Have you ever been to Cathedral Grove? It is a wonderful experience to sit on a log amidst those magnificent trees. At first you think there's a river near by, and then you realize it is just the soothing of the trees. A lovely sound, comparable to the gentle lapping of the waves on the seashore, soothing, comforting and restful.

I think trees are somewhat symbolic of our lives. Springtime, with the buds bursting forth, youth with its unfolding and development; summer with the fruit bearing, and maturity with its attainment. Then winter, with the fall of the leaf.

But think of a leafless tree, with snow on it: the delicate and lacy pattern its branches make.

So with life. We, alas, lose some of our hair, and maybe our teeth, yet nevertheless the winter of life need not be unattractive.

There's a charming verse which expresses this. Perhaps you know it? I wish I knew the name of the author.

"Let me grow lovely growing old,
So many fine things do.
Laces and ivory and gold,
And silks need not be new.
There is a beauty about old trees,
Old streets a glamour hold,
So why can't I? as well as these,
Grow lovely growing old!"

Age brings to almost everything something really wonderful. In the precincts of Exeter Cathedral, there's an old tree with a barricade around it, and a plaque, which tells you that it was planted a thousand years ago. The dignity of that old tree is something to remember.

And who can ever forget the two last lines of that lovely poem, "Trees," by Joyce Kilmer:

"Poems were made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

As U.S. Sees Us

New York Times

Canada has a valiant brigade in Korea and another in Germany. The Royal Canadian Air Force is already a considerable factor in Western Europe's air defense and it is steadily growing. It isn't practical for Canadians to increase their ground forces, in Germany when the money can be spent to better effect for the Air Force.

Whether Canada is pulling her full weight in the equally important field of economic aid for Europe is more questionable. Early post-war experiences for Canada, especially the interest-free loans to Britain, led to exchange difficulties and restrictions on consumption which jarred Canadians so hard they have not yet got over the shock. However, the recovery of the last few years has been spectacular.

It may be that Canada can now afford greater co-operation with Europe in the economic field than before and the St. Laurent government will doubtless be considering it.

Ups and Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

THAT'S an interesting experiment," said the Elevator Man, "where that fella has been letting his restaurant customers order what they want and pay what they think it's worth. The queer thing is that twice as many people as usual have been flocking into the place, and a lot of them are paying more than the normal prices just for the fun of putting the money in the cash register themselves. Some folks pay just what the menu charges, and a few, a very few, pay little or nothing. I guess the latter aren't paying so much what they think the meal is worth as what they think they're worth themselves. Going down!"

"The whole plan," said the Elevator Man, "seems to be operating on about the same proportions as life itself. There are always a few who put more into life than they take out. There is the vast body of humanity who try to break even, taking a fair share of the load. And then there's the inescapable few who try to get something for nothing. They may do it quite legally and by invitation, but they do it all the same. They see life as an opportunity rather than a duty; they're more interested in the principle than the principle. Lower main!"

"Not only," said the Elevator Man, "do some folks see no wrong in pulling less than their weight. They even have the idea that putting one over on the world is something to be proud of. They mistake what other people think of them like that prisoner did in the dock. The judge was summing up. This crime was carried out in a most audacious and skilful manner," he declared. Rushing, the prisoner interrupted him. "Now, my lord," he said, "no flattery if you please."

Commons Talks State Health

Doctor-Members Disagree on Plans For National Insurance Scheme

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP)—The Commons has heard two doctor-members debate one of the major topics of Parliament's new session—national health insurance. One, an independent, opposed it; the other, a Liberal, favored it.

Dr. Raoul Poulin, a physician from St. Martin, Que., and independent member for the constituency of Beauce, said he is "opposed to control of health by the state." Instead, the government might encourage private, prepaid medical and hospital plans.

Dr. William H. McMillan, chief surgeon at St. Catharines, Ont., General Hospital and Liberal member for Welland, said he favors a national health plan. But it must retain the present relationship between doctor and patient.

He said he "resents" the implication of some C.C.F. members that many Canadians die because of lack of hospital or medical care. In 30 years of practice he said he does not know of a case where a patient died because of the need for immediate hospital or medical care.

Another independent, Hector Dupuis from Montreal's St. Mary constituency, said he agrees with those who feel Canada should not rush into health insurance before facilities are available.

Hazen Argue, C.C.F. member for Assiniboia whose party is circulating a national petition calling for national health insurance.

C.P. Telegram Crest Violated by Reds

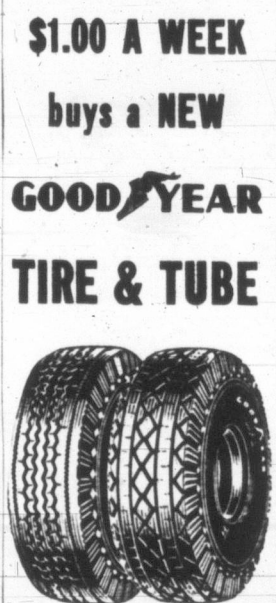

TORONTO, Nov. 28 (BUP)—Three Communist candidates in next Thursday's municipal elections in Toronto are under court order today to keep the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company's beaver crest out of campaign literature. They also are being sued.

Norman Freed, a former alderman again seeking office, is quoted as saying the company "must be kidding."

"But let them sue if they want to," he said. "I can't believe the telegraph form is trade-marked."

C.P.T. obtained a temporary injunction Thursday restraining Freed, board of education candidate R. M. Laver and board of control candidate Stewart Smith from using the beaver crest in handbills.

TIP TOPPERS INVITE KIDDIES TO CHRISTMAS THEATRE PARTY

Children of families holding cards at the Public Market free food stall will be guests at a special Christmas party at the Rio Theatre Dec. 20... and it is certain they will look up to their hosts.

Sponsors as in previous years, will be the Tip Toppers, a club composed of tall people.

The free food stall will open this Saturday at 9 a.m. to receive donated goods. Card holders should call for parcels between 1.30 and 3.30 in the afternoon.

Collection agencies for the stall have been set up at the Black Swan Cafe, the Prospect Lake Store and at the home of Mrs. Michael Pope, 288 Kerwood Avenue.

Huge Defense Orders Explained by Claxton

OTTAWA, Nov. 28. (CP)—Defense Minister Claxton contended that his department has been doing no more and no less than its duty in accumulating stores for the possible outbreak of war.

Replying in the Commons Thursday to Progressive Conservative charges of waste and extravagance in defense purchasing, he counter-argued that the opposition would be the first to accuse him and the department of negligence if war came and caught them without necessary stores.

He denied that there has been any excessive purchasing, and argued that the wonder is that there have not been more errors in a program so large.

Guilty, Freed For Killing

MAIDSTONE, England, Nov. 28 (AP)—A Briton was convicted Thursday of manslaughter for killing a known burglar with a booby trap in daylight and the judge turned him loose. If the killing had happened at night there wouldn't have been even a conviction.

The defendant, Sidney Taylor, 42, a mechanic, pleaded innocent. He said his home had been robbed three times while he was at work. He rigged two shotgun shells to explode when his old tin trunk was opened.

The device killed Noah Eastwood. The prosecution conceded that Eastwood was a known thief but pointed out that booby traps for burglars are legal in Britain only between sundown and dawn.

Liquor Given Minor, Sooke Man Convicted

A fine of $200 and $5.50 costs was imposed against Stan Walt, Sooke, in R.C.M.P. court in Sooke this week by Magistrate A. I. Thomas for supplying a juvenile with liquor.

The juvenile involved was a 15-year-old girl.

Court action arose from Colwood R.C.M.P. detachment investigations.

Walt was charged under the Criminal Code section of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

TO IMPROVE HOTELS

Breweries Questioned On $875,000 Loans

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP)—British Columbia's liquor inquiry commission has ordered breweries in Vancouver to produce a list of B.C. hotels to which they have lent $875,000.

Disclosure of the loans to hotels came Thursday after Robert Fiddes, director of Coast Breweries Ltd., told the commission that his company had no interest in any hotel other than loans, which took the form of endorsing notes.

Mr. Fiddes said the loans were suggested by the Liquor Control Board to improve the hotels. He said Coast Breweries had loans and advances to the amount of $179,172 but that the total of $875,000 was made by the three breweries in Vancouver jointly.

The commission is inquiring into the best methods of providing for sale of liquor by the glass, approved by British Columbia in a summer plebiscite.

Under present B.C. law, beer only is sold in hotel beer parlors or by the Liquor Control Board. Liquor must be bought in government stores.

Under questioning by H. H. Stevens, commission chairman, Mr. Fiddes also said breweries here have been trying to get a price increase for beer for almost a year.

He also disclosed that the three breweries share the liquor board monopoly market on a pro-rata basis: Vancouver breweries, two shares; Coast Breweries, two shares; and Sick's Capilano Breweries, one share.

Company balance sheets, read by Mr. Stevens showed the brewing companies paid about $160,000 last year to the B.C. Brewing Association. Mr. Fiddes said this was to help maintain three bodies, the Dominion, the Western and the B.C. Brewing Associations.

"I find some difficulty in reconciling this amount," Mr. Stevens said. "What does this association do? What protection do you get from it?"

"Its business is just to look after the interests of the industry so that each brewery in the province gets the district to which it is entitled," Mr. Fiddes replied. "It keeps the Winnipeg brewers in Winnipeg, the Saskatchewan brewers in Saskatchewan."

Despinto Brings Home Two Winners

LINCOLN, R.I., Nov. 28 (AP)—Riding in all nine races on Lincoln Downs' Thanksgiving Day card, Tony Despinto, the country's leading jockey, booted home two more winners Thursday bringing his season's total to 358. The 17-year-old apprentice rider is aiming to break the national season's record of 388.

Christmas Tree Business Hits $2,000,000

By BRIAN O'LEARY
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Nov. 28.—To Canada's statisticians Christmas trees are more than just a place for Santa Claus to unload his bag of tricks once a year.

For Canada, at any rate, they are also a $2,000,000 business once a year. They boost our trade once a year about this time with the United States by over $2,000,000.

Here is what they have found, as reported in Foreign Trade, weekly publication of the Trade and Commerce Department:

Last year Canada supplied approximately 25 per cent of all the Christmas trees used in the United States. In New York City, two-thirds of the trees came from Canada.

Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit and Chicago were also important markets for Christmas trees from Canadian forests, Foreign Trade said.

The statisticians said that the majority of these trees came from forests in British Columbia, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick in the main, with Quebec and Ontario forests as runners-up.

In the 1949-50 Christmas season, Nova Scotia yielded 2,187,000 Christmas trees for the home and foreign market.

New Brunswick was next with 2,018,000 trees with British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec each producing well over the million and a half mark each.

A dark cloud of American competition has appeared recently on the horizon to challenge Canada's position as a foremost Christmas tree supplier. Foreign Trade adds.

There is a Christmas tree company in Minnesota which has found a new way of boosting its sales and cutting into Canada's trade, Foreign Trade said.

The trees, most of them small for apartment houses, are treated with a special green, white or silver preservative, given metal bases with a sealed in, synthetic tree sap, and then shipped to super-markets across the States.

Airmen Killed Helping Push Stalled Truck

CHILLIWACK, Nov. 28 (BUP)—The mounted police today temporarily withheld the name of an R.C.M.P. airman killed when run over Thursday as he tried to help push a stalled army vehicle near the Chilliwack army camp.

Police said the victim was helping a group of men push the stalled truck. A second truck was also pushing and the airman fell between the two vehicles and was crushed by the dual wheels.

The defendant, Sidney Taylor, 42, a mechanic, pleaded innocent. He said his home had been robbed three times while he was at work. He rigged two shotgun shells to explode when his old tin trunk was opened.

IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA EXECUTIVES ADDRESS 78th ANNUAL MEETING

CHECK OF INFLATION ACHIEVEMENT OF YEAR

L. K. JOHNSTON
President

Toronto, November 26—Mr. L. K. Johnston, President, Imperial Bank of Canada addressing the Bank's 78th Shareholders Meeting today, stated that the past year has been one of great prosperity in Canada. Mr. Johnston pointed out that employment was high and as price rises have ceased the national income continues to grow. Mr. Johnston stated "The advantage we have gained over inflationary forces is perhaps the greatest achievement of the Canadian economy in the time that has elapsed since our last Annual Meeting."

Mr. Johnston felt the expansion of our productive capacity in 1952 seems likely to exceed even the most optimistic forecasts. While American capital makes an important contribution to maintaining the high level of investment, Canadian capital will continue to be our main reliance and "Encouragement of saving by Canadians should, therefore, be a major objective of economic policy."

To accomplish this, Mr. Johnston expressed the hope that rising tax revenues together with exacting scrutiny of governmental expenditures will make tax cuts possible.

Referring to the export trade picture, Mr. Johnston pointed out that in contrast with most of 1951 the year 1952 has shown an excess of exports over imports and this was mainly due to a favourable change in the terms of trade.

Mr. Johnston, commenting on the high exchange value of the Canadian dollar stated that the abundant supply of American dollars for investment in Canada had led to the high value of the Canadian dollar. He felt, however, that the high value of the Canadian dollar on the other hand, has encouraged the sale of Canadian securities held by Americans and were it not for this the upward pressure on the value of the Canadian dollar would have been greater.

"It is my hope that the Canadian dollar will not be allowed to rise much beyond recent levels."

Referring to the 1952 wheat crop, Mr. Johnston stated that this will be the biggest in history, and added to this are some 100 million bushels saved by our Western farmers this spring which they had to leave unthrashed the previous year. Abundant rains this summer produced an average yield of 26 bushels an acre equalling the record set in 1915, and Mr. Johnston pointed out that at current prices this crop is worth well over $1,250 million.

Commenting on our resource development, Mr. Johnston expressed the view that while our position is basically sound, the marketing of resource products is not without its problems. Pulp and lumber markets have weakened, base metals are going at lower prices, and gold mines are in a more difficult position due to the high value of the Canadian dollar but that our producers have both the initiative and faith in their ability to meet such problems has been demonstrated many times and, continued Mr. Johnston, "The great promise of large increases in productivity from the resource development program merits the most careful provision for its continuation."

It also depends on a wise public policy, sound conservation, depletion provisions, and appropriate tax allowances for development costs."

In forecasting the business prospects, Mr. Johnston continued "A careful appraisal suggests that the Canadian economy will continue in the present healthy balance in the near future. There seems no prospect yet of the sharp fall in investment expenditure which heralds the end of boom conditions. The many projects now underway for the development of our rich natural wealth imply continued heavy outlays. Exports, the other basis of our current prosperity present a more sobering outlook. For the moment rising exports in a few fields have offset sharp restriction in other lines."

Mr. Johnston urged continued vigilance in the anti-inflation struggle and stated that the reversing of the upward trend of prices in 1951 was greatly aided by a considerable rise in personal savings. Mr. Johnston warned that consumer spending is once more rising strongly and consumer credit is growing more rapidly than it did in 1950. Mr. Johnston concluded "The tasks before us demand the maximum output of which the growing Canadian working force is capable. I would like to give this all the emphasis possible. I believe that Canadians are well endowed with imaginative and enterprising leadership, are a disciplined and responsible people and that if we use fully these qualities we have sound ground for confidence in ourselves and our future."

IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA

ASSETS AND DEPOSITS AT RECORD LEVEL

L. S. MACKERSY, M.C.
Vice-President and General Manager

Toronto, November 26—Mr. L. S. Mackersy, Vice-President and General Manager, Imperial Bank of Canada, commenting on the 78th Annual Statement of the Bank said in part:—

The Seventy-Eighth Annual Statement of the Bank shows Total Assets of $586,540,603. This is a new high and is an increase of $30,934,561, during the year. Before provision for depreciation and taxes the profits for the year were $3,099,987 showing an increase of $237,987. Provision for depreciation was $449,992, and for Government of Canada and Provincial taxes $1,331,000—an increase of $181,000—left $1,318,996 which is $82,596 more than last year. Dividends of $1.20 per share amounting to $840,000 and a bonus of 20¢ per share totalling $140,000 were paid, which left a balance of $338,996. We have written $200,000 off Bank Premises account leaving $138,996 to be added to Profit and Loss Account which makes the balance at that account $1,214,741.

Deposits at $539,793,637 showing an increase of $55,051,591 establish a new all-time high. Non-interest bearing deposits increased $13,748,577 and interest-bearing deposits increased $27,000,588 a total increase of $40,749,165. Government of Canada deposits, however, decreased $2,070,032 but this was more than offset by an increase of $16,372,458 in Provincial Government deposits. Investments, not exceeding market value, now total $222,545,105—an increase of $25,776,804. Loans total $246,951,189—an increase of $12,876,845. Current Loans increased $13,073,385 and Call Loans increased $1,242,369 but loans to Provincial Governments decreased $272,690. Bank and Loans to Cities, Towns and Municipalities decreased $1,379,639. Bank Premises Account now stands at $8,248,485—an increase of $287,891. Our shareholders now number 3,379 and our branches, including sub-branches, total 227.

On the whole, the past year has been one of undoubted prosperity and development for Canada. While the unfortunate outbreak of foot and mouth disease resulted in the loss of livestock markets, it now appears certain that the epidemic has been fully eradicated and it is reasonable to expect resumption of exports to the United States in the comparatively near future. This year's Canadian wheat crop of 688 million bushels represents an unprecedented yield, exceeding by 20% the previous record established in 1928. The income from agriculture should exceed that of last year's record of approximately $3,000 million.

Canada's oil industry continues to advance not only in number of actual wells but in further intensified exploration in all four of the Western provinces. The completion and use of the pipeline to the head of Lake Superior has resulted in an important percentage reduction in the import of crude oil. It is quite within the realm of possibility that in the not too distant future Canada will be self-sufficient in this important product.

There is no change for the better in the gold mining industry, while non-ferrous metal production has to date this year run slightly ahead of the same period last year. Aluminum production is up noticeably and will in due course be substantially increased when the Kitimat project is completed. Additional finds of uranium deposits are worthy of comment and the refinery now being built will, when completed, be one of the world's largest, if not the largest.

Shipment of iron ore, despite the recent steel strike in the United States, has been heavier. Development of the iron ore deposits of Quebec and Labrador continue aggressively. Even now the development is providing large scale employment and when in production will be of substantial aid to the general economy of Canada.

Business generally has continued at a high level with the possible exception of the textile and allied trades. In regard to the latter, there has been a definite upturn in the recent past.

One of Canada's greatest needs is a further increase in population through immigration. I stated last year that these welcome newcomers had been readily absorbed and, in this connection, it is relevant to note that in a recent survey the number of unemployed persons seeking employment was approximately 13½% of the total labour force, and to all intents and purposes, therefore, it is correct to say that there is full employment.

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

City Council Thursday unanimously approved appointment of Au. Jerry Scutran as the city's representative at the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II next June.

Mayor Claude Harrison recommended the appointment. Ald. Scutran and Mrs. Scutran will be in London at that time.

Salvation Army were granted permission to operate their Christmas kettles on city streets from Dec. 10 to Dec. 24.

Woodward Stores (Victoria) Ltd. were given permission to operate their Santa sleigh on city streets from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. from Nov. 25 under the same conditions as last year. They must pay rent for six parking meters, council said.

Council approved an application for operation of a wood-yard at Alpha, Beta and Burnside Road, despite a petition from 23 residents opposing the move.

City Solicitor Arthur Patton said the property had been used for a woodyard since 1927 and he felt the city could not legally refuse permission.

$88.30 Per $100 Tender for City Bonds Accepted

Bid of $88.30 per $100 bond from Pemberton Securities Ltd. and syndicate for purchase of $200,000 in city debentures was accepted unanimously by City Council Thursday.

City Manager Cecil Wyatt had recommended acceptance to finance committee. The bid was the highest of five tenders.

Total purchase at $88.30 for every $100 debenture is $371,333. Mr. Wyatt said all bids were firm whereas last year when the city called for tenders on debentures it did not receive firm bids.

He stated that higher bids would have been submitted had the coupon rates been greater. They range from 2½ to 4½ per cent.

Cobble Hill Girl Wins Public Speaking Award

Marie Cullen, a member of the Cobble Hill Jersey Calf Club and of the B.C. Dairy Team which competed at Toronto's Royal Winter Fair in 1951, has won the 4-H junior farmer public speaking contest in Vancouver. It was learned Thursday.

She defeated two boys in the finals held at the B.C. Federation of Agriculture convention. She spoke on "Conservation of Soil and Its Fertility."

Council endorsed Mayor Claude Harrison's action in sending a night letter to the board of transport commissioners at Ottawa protesting conversion for ten-cent operation of pay telephones by the B.C. Telephone Co. in Victoria, in anticipation of a boost in the pay phone toll charge from five to ten cents.

Council approved permanent appointment of Alan Bigelow to the post of city prosecutor.

City Officials Refused Boost In Car Money

Representation by Parks administrator Herbert Warren and 22 other city employees for an increase in car allowances fell on deaf ears at City Council meeting Thursday.

The request was referred to the 1953 council.

Employees contended the 8 cents a mile allowed by the city was neither "fair nor justified" for operation of "heavy" automobiles.

They claimed they were in effect subsidizing the city, and asked council to consider a recent move by the provincial government. The latter now allows its employees 11 cents a mile for the first 6,000 miles on cars of 2,600 pounds or more.

The city reduced its rate this year from 10 cents to 8.

Lime Bay Residents Get 60-Day Notice

Thirteen residents of the Lime Bay squatter settlement were given another formal notice of 60 days in which to find other accommodation by City Council Thursday.

The first 60-day notice to vacate was issued Aug. 28.

Island Woman Sets 'First' in Dentistry

A Campbell River woman, Mrs. Norma Bell, Thursday became the first woman dental hygienist in B.C. when she passed tests set by College of Dental Surgeons of B.C. with first class honors.

She was graduated last June from the University of Oregon School of Dental Hygiene. She will practice in the office of her husband, Dr. K. W. Bell, Campbell River.

Howe's Loss, Hawks' Gain

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (UP)—The loss of an old sidekick threatened today to ruin the hopes of Detroit's Gordie Howe that someday he might skate into the record books as the greatest scorer in ice hockey history.

Howe became hockey's number one player last season by scoring 47 goals for the Red Wings to lead the league in that department and tie his 1950-51 total points mark of 86 by adding 39 assists. It was a performance which earned him the Ross scoring trophy and the Hart "most valuable player" award.

In the first 18 games of this season, Howe had scored nine goals. Yet there are many who believe the 24-year-old wingman's hopes for an all-time scoring record has been impaired by the departure of Sid Abel, who centered the Red Wing line which had Ted Lindsay on the other wing.

Abel left Detroit to become coach of the Chicago Black Hawks and there is no over-emphasizing the part which he played in helping Howe to the threshold of hockey greatness.

Back in the days when Howe was just a hopeful youngster playing goalie on his high school team, Abel was playing for the team in Gordie's home town.

"A friend of mine was a bellhop at the hotel," Howe once recalled, "and when Abel wanted anything, he'd let me take it up to him."

By the time he was 14, Gordie attracted the attention of the New York Rangers and was invited to their tryout camp. Gordie became homesick and bolted. But when, a year later, the Red Wings invited him to their tryout camp, Gordie was happy to stay. The reason was that Abel was on the team and just being near him pleased the youngster.

When Howe went to the Red Wings in the 1946-47 season all his boyhood dreams came true. Because now he was playing on the same club with Abel, his old idol.

And it was Abel, playing beside him, whose assists helped make possible Gordie's sensational scoring of the past three seasons. They have compared him to Howie Morenz, which is like matching a young ball player with Babe Ruth or a fighter with Jack Dempsey.

Hockey men know that Howe had to have more than Abel at his side to perform the feats which carried Detroit to four straight league championships. But they do insist that Abel's loss will handicap Howe.

"He's bound to miss Abel," explained Joe Primeau, coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs. "Anybody would miss a centre like Sid."

The Red Wings have tried desperately to replace Abel. A half dozen experiments failed but it looks now as if Metro Prystai may fill the bill. Howe even was tried at centre ice but is back at his old pursuit of Maurice Richard from the right wing spot.

All of which delights Montreal fans, faithfully debating what they contend is Richard's superiority as a speed skater and goal producer.

Detroit sneers back that Richard is "fed" continually while Howe is, as well as a great ambidextrous shot, an aggressive team player who shines in the dual role of scoring and making assists.

Meanwhile, everybody in the game is waiting to see whether it was a disastrous move for Howe when Abel went off to coach at Chicago.

MR. AND MRS. HAVE TEAMS

Soccer a Byword in McLaren Household

By RAY SIDAWAY
Soccer is a family affair around the McLaren household.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Richard McLaren have teams in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association and, oddly enough, Mrs. McLaren's club is on top of the third division while hubby's squad is in second place in the first division.

Mrs. McLaren is sponsor of the Mic Mac Club which is unbeaten and untied this season. Hubby handles Harris Cycles.

In two years of operation Mic Macs have lost only two games and tied one.

Last year they won both upper and lower island championships as well as a Sunday School League championship trophy.

How the Sunday school cup got in among the other silverware Mrs. McLaren is at a loss to explain.

CREDITS COACH
She credits coach "Fuzz" Blair for the team's success and asserts "if it wasn't for Fuzz, we wouldn't be where we are today. He is a wonderful coach and the boys really listen to him."

The team got its start by a joke, more or less.

One day Mrs. McLaren's son, Bud, came in from watching the bigger boys playing and asked his mother why he couldn't play.

She explained to him that he was too small for that league. Then her eager son suggested that she form a team to play in one of the younger leagues, and she agreed, hoping to get rid of Bud so that she could cook supper.

Bud, however, did not take it so lightly, and every evening he would bring a few boys to the house until they finally had a full team.

Now that she had a team, whether she wanted it or not, the question of a name came up.

Being a "Mc" herself, and having a number of "Macs" on the team, it was just pure logic what the club would be called, she says.

IN SECOND PLACE
As for hubby's team, Harris Cycles in the first division, they are presently tied for second place. However, Mr. McLaren thinks if he can keep his present team together, he will give Army, Navy and Air Force Vets a run for their money and league honors.

His team, like many of the others, have had trouble in finishing off scoring plays.

In the three years the club has been in operation, the chief trouble seems to be keeping players with the team.

"When we get some outstanding players they either move up to a higher league or switch to a team they think is better," he said.

Members of Harris Cycles are Don Glass, Dick McLaren, Phil Moir, Ron Hughes, George Kelsum, Dunc McKay, Keith Todd, George Sagers, A. Atkinson, "Torny" Hughes, George Bridges, Paul Calvey and Keith Lawrence.

Rasslers Prove Adage—The Show Must Go On

What's with rasslers anyhow? Two of them can be opposing one another in one match and find great sport in beating each other to a pulp and then come back to try again in a tag-team brawl.

This is exactly what happened in promoter Ken Williamson's three-bout card at the Victoria Ballroom Thursday night.

Popular Danno Macdonald, who was scheduled to appear in the main event was fog-bound at Wenatchee and could not make the trip.

Realizing what would happen if he did not have a main event, Williamson matched Honest John Cretoria and Curt von Popenheim against Arturo Cosenza and Iron Duke Krauser in a tag-team event.

Bob Hope couldn't have been zanyer if he was there in person. At one minute the grunt and groan artists had the overflowing house roaring with laughter, and the next minute ready to slit the villain's throats from ear to ear.

Popenheim and Cretoria emerged winners of the melee after they tried to break the ring posts in two with Cosenza's head. Finding that he was out to the world, the villains tossed Cosenza into the first row and were giving Krauser the works when the bout ended.

In the opener, Krauser and Cretoria battled to a 20-minute draw while Cosenza won the semi-main from Popenheim after the "meanie" was disqualified for using illegal tactics.

Tie Games Again Curse of N.H.L.

That old bugaboo of the National Hockey League—tie games—is turning up again.

Before the Second World War the teams played an extra 10-minute session in an effort to break the deadlock and in play-off games they played until somebody won, even if it took all night. But during the war, overtime was cut out as an emergency measure.

There were two deadlocks in three games Thursday night, making 14 ties in the 61 games played so far this year. At the same time last season there had been 10 ties in 59 games. In all last season there were 38 deadlocked games.

Chicago and Toronto tied 3-3 while Montreal and Detroit tied to a 2-2 deadlock. At Boston the Bruins defeated New York 3-1.

FREAK GOAL
At Detroit, Gordie Howe scored a freak goal to give the Wings their one point. Early in the third period Metro Prystai hefted a 50-foot shot at the Montreal net. Howe had flopped to the ice and his back was to the puck as he skidded. It hit him from behind, flipped between his legs and he shoved it into the Canadiens' net for the first Red Wing goal.

GAMBLE PAYS OFF
The Leafs pulled goalie Harry Lumley in the dying minutes of their game at Chicago and scored with 68 seconds left to deadlock the game. On the third attempt with six men up Ted Kennedy slipped the puck to Sid Smith who made his shot good.

PACKED HOUSE GREET'S 'MIKADO'

Polished Performance in Leads Matched by Gaily-Garbed Chorus

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON
"The Mikado," by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, is a most pleasing vocal quality, character and color, to the "Wandering Minstrel" and a greater freedom to his acting.

A trail of nine full-scale productions by the Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society has now brought us to the first repetition of "The Mikado" since the Society's initial presentation of it in 1948.

Tuesday's opening performance at the Royal Theatre was a milestone which revealed the gratifying distance the group has traveled in that time. Those in the cast who were re-creating former roles, such as Jimmie Mead-Robbins, have made astonishing progress in their art.

Excellent new talent has been attracted to the organization and, in general, stagecraft and technique have improved to a point where confidence, smoothness and genuine polish are consistent.

The curtain rose last night on a scene of the most brilliant color—a bold and attractive setting and opulent new costumes of handsome design. The arrangement of the opening chorus and the singing were equally pleasing.

LOVELY SOPRANO
All principal roles were exceptionally well taken. Ruth Champion has a lovely soprano voice, of uniform quality, throughout its range. It is well placed and entirely free in the upper registers, so that her singing of "The Sun Whose Rays" had a true lyric beauty.

In addition, she has charm and a simple, unselfconscious acting technique that nevertheless is effective and has all the earmarks of experience.

Tenor Alan White, also repeating his former role, outstripped his earlier performance, bringing

Theatre Guild Ready to Show Festival Entry
Four eccentric females and an imaginary dog will be running around on the stage of Langham Court Theatre Saturday when the Victoria Theatre Guild rings up the curtain on its entry in this year's Dominion Drama Festival, "The Mad Woman of Chailiot."

The play, a three-act comedy-fantasy, concerns the efforts of four mentally-unbalanced sisters, living in Paris, who decide they must save the world from evil.

Patricia Fairweather plays the title part as the mad woman of Chailiot (pronounced Shy-o), and cast as her equally "mad" sisters are Noel Cusack, Olive Keane and Cynthia Ross.

There is a cast of 23 in the play. Leading male players are Archie Bain, Henry Stubbings, John Keane and Ken Bostock.

Audrey S.T.D. Johnson, director of the guild's last prize-winning Dominion Festival entry, serves again in this capacity. R. V. James is assistant director.

Curtain time Saturday is 8.15. The play will run all next week.

MUSICALLY SECURE
The choruses and concerted numbers were well handled, spirited and musically secure. In most cases the diction was distinct. A dry spot occurred on the entrance of the ensemble before the cast got on stage. There were moments when vitality seemed to be lacking and some climaxes could have had more "point."

The orchestra was a genuine support throughout, and Melvin Knudsen, conducting, set smart tempos and bonded chorus, principals and orchestra firmly together. Col. Victor Mills produced the show and Ivan Howell was production manager.

The society, and the Gyro Club of Victoria, which has sponsored all nine productions, undoubtedly

ISLAND DIGEST

NANAIMO, Nov. 28—Albert Tannock, former member of the B.C. Police and now proprietor of an auto parts business, will stand for election to the city council. He is the fifth candidate to enter the aldermanic race.

DUNCAN, Nov. 28—A North Cowichan council by-law authorizing a higher scale of trades license fees will increase annual revenue in fees from $5,000 to about $7,500. Rates will affect business operations, professional men and tradesmen.

NANAIMO, Nov. 28—Vancouver Island will face a power shortage by either 1954 or 1955 unless a storage dam is constructed at Buttle Lake, C. W. Nash, B.C. Power Commission district manager, told Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce.

R. H. Mawhinney, president of the Associated Chamber of Vancouver Island, said the power situation will decide the location of a $4,000,000 plant to be built by Western Canada Steel.

COURTENAY, Nov. 28—The city's first traffic light is now operating at the intersection of Cliff Avenue and Fifth Street, on the Island Highway. A second light, facing down Fifth Street, gives drivers approaching the intersection from the Courtenay River bridge the right of way for a left turn.

DUNCAN, Nov. 28—Maple Bay Ratepayers are planning installation of a permanent, year-round water system to cost $35,000. Consumers would pay three mills on their tax rate and about $3.50 per month.

LANGFORD, Nov. 28—New officers of the Langford Community Club are Mrs. A. Bewley, president; T. K. Buxton, vice-president; Owen McLeod, secretary, and Mrs. Doris Baithwaite, treasurer. Directors are R. Freeman, Alan Bodman, A. Kiteley, Earl Powell, Mrs. T. Thorpe, Ron Limer and Mrs. W. Kolinski.

LADYSMITH, Nov. 28—City council this week tabled a request from the District No. 71 school board to borrow $3,299, which is the city's portion of a $2,935 deficit in the board's operating expenses.

R. S. Wood, city clerk, doubted the legality of the request, while Ald. Tom Bertram complained that "there's nothing to keep the spending down."

MELBOURNE (AP)—Adrian Quist, former Australian Davis Cup star, was upset Friday in the first round of the Victoria tennis championships by junior Tony Ryan, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0.

SYNOPSIS: Thursday night the mercury fell to 20 degrees at Vancouver. Coldest night since last January 3 but still well above the record 10 degrees established in 1911. Fog was confined to a few thick patches in low-lying areas.

A moderately active disturbance is developing off the west coast and cloud cover is expected to spread to the lower mainland this evening. The cloud will prevent the formation of fog and produce somewhat higher overnight temperatures. Cloudiness is general over much of the interior.

VICTORIA: Cloudy Saturday. A few showers Saturday morning. Little change in temperature. Winds light. Low tonight and high Saturday 27 and 42.

WEST COAST: Cloudy Saturday. Intermittent light rain or drizzle. Little change in temperature. Low tonight and high Saturday at Estevan Point 40 and 45.

GEORGIA STRAIT: Cloudy Saturday. Intermittent light rain early Saturday morning. Little change in temperature. Winds southeast. Low Saturday 20 and high Saturday at Nanaimo 30 and 40.

VANCOUVER: Cloudy tonight and Saturday. Occasional light rain Saturday morning. Not so cold tonight. Winds light. Low tonight and high Saturday at Vancouver Airport 30 and 43.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

This was bound to happen, sooner or later. And any character who makes a practice of pouncing with glee on the grammatical errors of others deserves the works when he blows one himself.

I am grateful to Mrs. Helen Pudney, 1027 Deal Street, for the sweet reasonableness with which she points out my glaring error. She writes:

"In Wednesday's Times, speaking of the civic elections, you say, 'I feel they could do with a little help from you and I.' Now, suppose you leave out the 'you' in that statement—it isn't silly? Why is it that so many people make this grammatical error? It should be 'me' not 'I'."

"Do let Punch write another column—I love him!"

My only excuse, Mrs. Pudney, is that columnists are so used to hitting the 'I' key on the typewriter, they do so automatically in all circumstances.

As for "letting" Punch write another column—that isn't the question at all. As far as I am concerned, I would "let" him do it every day. But he is essentially a lazy character, and he puts up a strong argument every time I suggest he should do another column. He says none of his canine friends have to write for a living, so why should he?

I have not yet worked out an answer to that argument.

Fascinating news item in yesterday's paper: "JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—The city commission ruled recently that no business is to be transacted in any fire station. Mayor Haydon Burns said he received a complaint about a sign on one fire station that read 'fresh eggs for sale'."

Why the complaint? Weren't the eggs fresh?

A Sidney constituent (who asks to remain nameless) feels that the village commissioners are going to extreme lengths to protect the interest of the citizens.

He points to a news item in the Saanich Peninsula and Gulf Islands Review, Nov. 26:

"Village commissioners, taking office a few weeks ago, wasted no time getting their teeth into the serious garbage problem."

One of the new entries at H.M.C.S. Naden was discussing "Topic A" the other day.

"I don't like the bold, forward type of woman," he said. "Give me the shy, retiring, demure type. The kind you have to whistle at twice."

A small item in the paper reads: "Our worst contagious diseases are no longer cholera, small pox, and plague."

Typographical errors are a little contagious, too—eh, Jack?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Boys' work in the Greater Victoria area will profit again this year from the Optimist Club sale of Christmas trees. Members report they already have orders for 1,500 trees. They will have 2,000 available on their two outdoor stands in the 300 block Cook Street and the 2000 block Quadra Street.

Oak Bay Progressive Conservative Association will hold a Christmas party Dec. 5 at 8 p.m. in St. Mary's Hall, Yale Street.

There will be entertainment by talented artists, and games for young and old. Members may bring their friends.

Fifty Victoria women, members of a home economics club, have signed up for a civil defense course which will start in January. The women will train in conjunction with a field kitchen phase of civil defense.

Edwin E. Pearlman, solicitor and director of Victoria Press Ltd., spoke to The Times editorial staff members Thursday on the laws of libel, the pitfalls of "contempt" and the necessity always of checking for the accuracy of information and the veracity of informants. This was "shop talk" of a specialized nature and a refresher course in laws of the news room, covering more than two hours of report and discussion.

Caught by Game Warden Robert Sinclair hunting migratory game birds with a rifle, Paul Medrich, Victoria, was fined $20 and $5 costs by Magistrate A. L. Thomas in provincial police court here today. Medrich pleaded guilty. The offense was reported to have occurred at Roche Cove Nov. 23.

Trans Canada Airlines went back on schedule at 10:30 a.m. this morning, after heavy fog at Vancouver airport had disrupted Victoria-Mainland service for two days.

Airline officials hoped to maintain schedules throughout the afternoon and evening.

Ogden Point Dock Space All 'Taken'

It may be a case of "line forms to the right" at Ogden Point docks this week-end.

As of this morning, every berth at the Point was reserved, and Donaldson Lines U.K.-Pacific freighter Ss. Carmia could not be assured of space for Sunday. Carmia, originally scheduled for Seattle before docking in Victoria, wishes to come direct to this port because of the foreman-checkers strike in Seattle. Unless she can arrange an alternate U.S. port (possibly Tacoma) the ship will have to anchor in Royal Roads awaiting space at the Point.

Also due this week-end, in addition to lumber carriers, are two "Christmas orange" ships—Ss. Wideawake and Trade Wind. Both fly the United States flag. Two Furness Lines general cargo ships, Pacific Importer and Pacific Reliance, are also expected early next week as Victoria's deep-sea docks keep up a busy pace.

Curling Rink Race Bet Paid Off

Relaxed in a decorated wheelbarrow, Larry Marshall, president of the Cowichan Co-Operative Curling Association, collects a bet from Victoria's Ernie Bullock, building superintendent of this city's $150,000 rink, now nearing completion. Mr. Bullock wagered the ride that Victoria's rink would be finished first.

Duncan Curling Rink Jammed at Dedication

Victoria Rival Builder Pays His Bet With Adversary Riding Barrow in Parade

More than 2,500 people jammed into the Cowichan Co-Operative Curling Association's new rink at Duncan Thursday night for the official dedication by Robert M. Strachan, Cowichan-Newcastle M.L.A.

Before hundreds of citizens on the streets of Duncan's business section, Ernie Bullock, Victoria's curling rink building superintendent paid off a bet by wheeling Larry Marshall, president of the Cowichan Curling Association, behind a parade led by Victoria pipers and girls' marching team.

Last summer Bullock had wagered with Marshall that Victoria's rink would be finished first.

At the rink, the spectators were thrilled to the graceful pair skating of Mary Rose Thacker and Frank Koenders, Victoria professionals. The precision marching of Capt. Norman Foster's Victoria Girls' Drill Team was a revelation to the Duncan audience as the 48 girls went through a complicated half-hour routine.

Three Sikhs from Masachi Lake initiated the ceremonial stick fighting, and the Home Towners musical group from Victoria presented a short vocal and musical skit.

Mr. Strachan complimented the curling rink on the quality of their faith and commended them on their zeal in completing the ambitious project in barely four months. He hoped that for many years the rafters of the half-barrel shaped building would ring with the laughter of happy citizens enjoying themselves together.

SKATING RINK NEED—Joe Dukowski, manager of Victoria's Memorial Arena, hoped that the initial success of skating in the rink, which will open for curling on Dec. 9, would spur local citizens "to get a rink up here, for the pleasure and enjoyment of the children."

He recalled the "gleam in the eyes" of the children on the day the rink was first opened for skating and said: "We can build many rinks for the social cost of one juvenile delinquent."

Second prize-winner in the drawing of 13 door prizes was Ald. Frank Mulliner of Victoria.

Missing Man Sought—Mrs. Ruth Graham, 1357 Esquimalt Road, has asked the city detective department to help locate her brother, John Edward Day, about 50.

Born in Dartmouth, N.S., Mr. Day is six feet and weighs 175 pounds and is believed to be somewhere in western Canada.

Work of the International Christian Leprosy Mission will be discussed in Victoria tonight by Rev. Jared Barker of Kansas City, who will be leaving next month to undertake missionary duties in the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Barker will describe mission-operated homes for Philippine children of leprosy parents, and will show a number of colored slides.

His talk will be given at the Glad Tidings Tabernacle, North Park Street, at 8 p.m.

DEATH PROBE BRINGS CALL FOR INSPECTOR

Safety Man Needed On Projects, Claim

Employment of a "safety man" on all private road construction projects where motor vehicles and heavy equipment are in use, was recommended by a coroner's jury here today.

It was attached to a verdict of accidental death rendered by the death of 63-year-old Charles Nelson, a rock foreman. He was crushed to death by a 15-ton truck on the Trans-Canada Highway project in the vicinity of Vickery-Helmcken Roads last Tuesday.

The jury absolved Glen C. Gainer, driver of the truck, of all blame in connection with the accident.

Gainer told the jury that he was backing up his truck to take up a position underneath a shovel when he noticed the legs of the victim jutting out from under the body of the vehicle.

He said the truck he was driving was not equipped with mirrors, horn or whistle.

NO REAR VISION—Later R.C.M.P. Constable Gordon McFarlane, who investigated the accident, was asked by W. R. McIntyre, representing Nelson's family, if a mirror installed in the truck would be of any use.

Mr. McFarlane replied that a mirror extended on a long arm would help a little.

"I still don't think a mirror would give a complete view of the rear of the truck," he added.

It was pointed out by the foreman of the jury, E. Jamieson, that a mirror was practically useless due to the vehicle's large box. The truck was equipped with only one seat.

The jury was also informed by Constable McFarlane that private trucks not employed on public highways are not subject to the B.C. motor vehicle regulations.

Completion of British Columbia's giant aluminum development at Kitimat will stimulate business throughout the entire province, J. B. White, vice-president of the Aluminum Company of Canada told a general meeting of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce in the Empress Hotel at noon today.

Spending for goods and services by residents at Kitimat is already running around $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a year, he said.

When the job is finished and the town is built, personal spending should reach $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 annually, he estimated.

The big boost for B.C. trade forecast by the Alcan development is doubly important since the aluminum operation will be permanent, day to day work with no seasonal fluctuations, Mr. White pointed out.

While Kitimat will remain predominantly an aluminum producing centre, other industries will be attracted to the area as well, Mr. White said.

The district is a natural location for industry based on timber resources of the countryside, he pointed out.

In addition, substantial areas in the Kitimat community have been set aside for the location of light industries. Alcan officials are anxious that the centre should not remain a one-industry town, the speaker stressed.

Sailor Sentenced To Borstal School Following Assault

Robert Longtin, 18-year-old R.C.N. rating, today was committed to Borstal School by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court for assaulting Chinese nurse, Miss Lucia Lee, with intent to rob her Nov. 9.

Magistrate Hall sentenced him to six months' determinate, and two years less one day indeterminate.

According to city police, Longtin, with his hand in his overcoat pocket to indicate he had a weapon, demanded that Miss Lee "give me all you've got" and that when she screamed he clamped his hand over her mouth to stifle the screams.

Mayor to Foot Bill For Election Hall

Harrison to Dig in Own Pocket to Pay For City Candidates' Public Meeting

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

Mayor Claude Harrison will hire a hall, at his own expense to enable the Victoria electorate "to see and hear their candidates" before the Dec. 11 civic election.

The meeting will be open to all comers.

The mayor's announcement today marks the first spark of life in the forthcoming election. Despite the fact that a record number of voters will be eligible this year, pre-election fever and the usual campaigning even before nomination day has been absent.

Mayor Harrison will have nothing to do with the meeting other than to arrange the time and place—and pay the bill.

He hopes to be able to secure either the Sirocco or Lower Ballroom of the Crystal Garden for a night immediately after nomination day, Dec. 4.

The mayor queried the city solicitor on the legality of the move and while the latter has not made a report yet, he indicated the mayor would be free to proceed.

COURTESY GESTURE—"It will be completely apart from the usual City Council sponsored meeting for candidates," the mayor said. "I wish to arrange it as a courtesy to the public and all candidates will be welcome. I hope they all come."

The mayor said he did not feel the public had sufficient knowledge of their candidates, particularly when newcomers enter the civic field.

Latest possible candidate in the city aldermanic field is Harold P. Gray, 325 Cook Street, owner of a food store. He said today he had been approached but will not be able to announce a decision until Saturday.

Seven persons to date have definitely announced themselves as aldermanic candidates for four vacancies. They are: Aldermen Don Smith, Frank Mullinar, Jim Neely and Arthur Dowell, all seeking re-election and Harry Haigh, Millard Mooney and Jane Freedman.

Expected to announce his candidacy any day is Ald. Robert Macmillan. Other possible candidates include Mrs. May Campbell, Harold Ker and William Williams.

Two have so far announced candidacy for the one vacancy on police commission. They are: John A. McLellan and Gordon Carter.

Ask Court to Stop Ditch-Digging Plan—Solicitor J. A. Byers has initiated proceedings in B.C. Supreme Court in an attempt to quash a Normandy Road ditch-deepening by-law recently passed by Saanich Council.

Mr. Byers, representing five persons living in the Normandy Road area who feel they will have to pay too heavy a share of the cost, appeared before Mr. Justice H. S. Wood in chambers this week, and obtained from him an order requiring Saanich Council to send a representative to court to answer the criticisms.

The five plaintiffs complain that those persons who will derive most benefit from the ditch will be charged less than they for having the work undertaken. Also, they complain that the ditch will lessen the value of their properties.

The case is scheduled to be called again next Wednesday.

Cars driven by B. D. Lalonde, B-11 Belmont Park, and Everett M. Gibbons, 1533 Admirals were damaged in a collision at 8:20 Thursday night on Johnson Street near Johnson Street Bridge, police report.

HOARSE 'GIRL' GETS ESCORT-OUT OF TOWN

A female impersonator has gone back to Vancouver—with as escort as far as the steamer, police report today.

"It would have taken a sharp eye to penetrate the disguise," Chief of Police John Blackstock told The Times. "He was dressed absolutely to fit the role."

But his short hair and hoarse voice broke the spell.

The man came here to apply for a job, police believe; but the woman he interviewed was suspicious and called the unwellcome escort.

Police Driver Colli Denies Carelessness

A plea of not guilty was entered by city police Constable Frank B. Colli when he was charged in city police court today with careless driving arising from the crash of a police plover car early in the month.

George F. Gregory appeared as counsel for the officer and entered the plea.

The case was adjourned to December 3.

Constable Colli was the driver of a city police plover car which was badly smashed in a collision with the rear-end of a parked sawdust truck on Dallas Road on the early morning of November 4, according to police reports.

Colleague Pays High Tribute to Great Victoria Physician—The Late Harold Edward Ridewood

Last week people of all walks of life in Victoria joined in a memorial service to the city's "Dean of Medicine," Dr. Harold Edward Ridewood, who died in London, Nov. 3. The following tribute to Dr. Ridewood from the medical profession has since been written by Dr. H. R. Murphy, director of the Cancer Foundation here and former chief of the public hospital's department of radiology, and is carried by The Times in appreciation of an outstanding Victorian.

The Late Dr. Ridewood

On Nov. 8, 1952, the death occurred in London, England, of Dr. H. E. Ridewood, 74, of Victoria, B.C. Through him, medical practice in Victoria had been interwoven with that of the great London Hospital for a period of 40 years.

This was a time of magnificent and spectacular development in all fields of medical practice and Dr. Ridewood was singularly well equipped, through natural ability and aptitude, and an excellent and prolonged training, to integrate most successfully all the new advances in his daily work and to make them a vital force in Canada—the land of his adoption. At the same time an elder brother established an international reputation in research in tropical diseases. Dr. Ridewood brought to the practice of medicine a rare intellect and exceptional training so that when these were combined with his high sense of professional responsibility and idealism, he fulfilled the high tribute paid to the medical profession by Robert Louis Stevenson in his dedication to "Underwoods": "There are men and classes of men that stand above the common herd; the soldier, the sailor and the shepherd not infrequently; the artist rarely; rarer still the clergyman; the physician almost as a rule. He is the flower (such as it is) of our civilization. Generosity he has such as is possible to those who practice an art—never to those who drive a trade; discretion tested by a hundred secrets; tact, tried in a thousand embarrassments; and what are more important, Herculean cheerfulness and courage."

Dr. Ridewood's father was a brilliant headmaster in Enfield Grammar School in Middlesex so as a child he grew up in an atmosphere of books and culture. It is of passing interest that he was born in a part of that old institution known as "Queen Elizabeth's Stables" which was not a misnomer in any sense of the word. That was the purpose for which it was originally built.

Commencing his medical studies in the London Hospital Medical College and at the University of London on a scholarship, he qualified for the degrees of M.D. and B.S. in 1903. His brilliance was further emphasized by the winning at this time of the gold medal. A second gold medal was won when he took his M.S. in 1909. During this period he filled several important hospital posts in various London hospitals, including that of surgical registrar at the London Hospital from 1908 to 1910.

Dr. Ridewood came to Canada in 1911 and became associated with Dr. O. M. Jones, then senior surgeon in Victoria. During the First World War he served with the Canadian forces from 1915 until 1918 when, on the death of Dr. Jones, he was recalled to Canada as consulting surgeon to Military District No. 11. He was retired with the rank of Lieutenant-colonel and began independent private practice in Victoria in 1920.

Since that time he has been actively identified with hospital development both in the Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital. He has been chief of staff in both institutions as well as president of the Victoria Medical Society and the British Columbia Medical Association. He was, in 1913, one of the founders of the American College of Surgeons. He was married in 1919 and his wife and four children survive.

It is easy to summarize in this fashion the milestones in a busy life. It is a much more difficult task to attempt to appraise the various factors, beyond a restless and versatile intellect combined with exceptional training, which made Dr. Ridewood the dean of medicine in Victoria—beloved by the profession which appreciated his skill and his outstanding surgical work, and respected and beloved by his patients whose devotion and confidence in him were well attested by the large congregation which filled St. John's Church when Canon Biddle conducted a moving memorial service on Nov. 19. His ashes will be placed in the new Columbarium in Christ Church Cathedral.

To those who watched his practice over the years, the outstanding explanation of his tremendous power of accomplishment was that he knew the value of time and while never hurried in his actual work, there was no waste of precious minutes in futile conversation and banter which often fills so large a part of the daily routine. To some this may have made him seem abrupt but he had unlimited time—almost leisure—for the sick patient who consulted him and the young physician who sought his aid. While his health was impaired for some years before his death, he took up the organization of a cancer clinic in Victoria with enthusiasm and his very valuable work in this field will not be forgotten.

Another possible explanation of his success may lie in the fact that he was always a student and as a close friend of his said: "He read—always—for knowledge and not for temporary entertainment." His hobbies were such as you might expect—photography and physics. In the latter field he found endless satisfaction and it is quite clear that had he taken training in this subject, he would have been one of the outstanding physicists of his time. This is obvious when we learn that as far back as 1919, he was thinking of and studying the possibilities of nuclear fission. For many years he corresponded with well-known physicists on this and other subjects. Furthermore, he had that greatest of assets—an orderly mind and an excellent and well stocked memory where difficult surgical problems of the past were stored away as in a filing cabinet—always ready for reference and application.

He found his greatest relaxation in his home and with his family, and the friends who knew him in that setting, realized the warmth of his affection and the fullness of his life, and his singularly fine basic character. The old Roman poet who wrote "Non omnis moriar" gave the Canadian poet, Bliss Carman, the title for one of his imperishable poems beginning:

"And here in the November dusk
There comes an echo faint
Of that gay, gallant careless voice
That cried—'Non omnis moriar.'"
"Behind the mask of lore and creed
There dwells an instinct strong and blind
Refuting sorrow, bidding grief
Be something better than resigned."

Yes—something of Dr. Ridewood lives in each one of us who knew and loved him. His work goes on in the medical practice of every physician and surgeon who has followed his work and known his devotion to medical science. It is our responsibility to so live and practice our profession that this heritage may not perish.

Prod Earl Marshal on Official Ensembles for Coronation Day

LONDON, Nov. 28 (CP).—Britain's fashion industry is concerned about what will happen if final dress regulations for Westminster Abbey are not given until about three months before the coronation.

This is just one of the coronation problems agitating the trade and causing telephones to jingle in the office of the Duke of Norfolk, who as Earl Marshall presides over preparations for next summer's big event.

Fashion writers note particularly that since there have been no evening court presentation parties since before the Second World War, it is extremely difficult to say what regulations will apply regarding court dress. The presentation parties were about the closest approach, for dress purposes, to the coronation.

SIMPLE IN 1937

At the last coronation, the problem was simple for 632 peeresses attending the abbey ceremony. They wore fur-trimmed crimson velvet kirtle over court dress without train. The dress was white or cream with lace, embroidery, gold or silver brocade. No colors were allowed and tiaras had to be worn.

But for the great majority—the abbey will hold 1,760 persons this coronation—a wider choice made things more difficult. Full court dress without train and worn with Prince of Wales feathers and veil, could be chosen in any color but black. The alternative was afternoon dress "without hats or bonnets." A scarf or lace covering was worn in the abbey.

Wholesale dress houses note that the economic structure of fashion buying has changed completely since the last Coronation. It is expected that about 75 per cent of the women attending the abbey will buy their dresses from the stores rather than the couturiers.

"For dresses to be in the shops to give women time to make careful selection, the Earl Marshall's office should give their directions almost immediately," writes Winifred Jackson of London's Daily Telegraph.

SIX-MONTH JOB

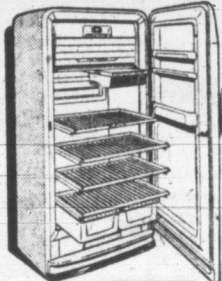

"It takes about six months for couture reproductions to reach the public," said a representative of Arthur Banks, one of London's leading couture houses.

At the 1937 Coronation, dress regulations were announced only about three months before the date of the service. That resulted in a scramble for embroidery that would otherwise have been done at home.

Dress manufacturers say it takes a month to design a couture collection, a month for buyers to make their choice and additional time for production and delivery. At least four months' notice would be preferred.

One designer, however, is not worried on the embroidery question. "I have one of the biggest hand-embroidery workrooms in Britain," Norman Hartnell told the Canadian Press. Hartnell designed the dresses worn by six trainbearers at the Coronation of George VI and most fashion writers forecast he will design the Queen's robes for next June.

The Young Women's Christian Association, patterned on the Y.M.C.A., was formed in 1855.

Winter Storage of Vegetables and Fruits Require Careful Methods

Food storage isn't just a matter of having a cool cellar in the home, it is "big business" all along the food line, from the grower down to the grocer. Take the case of celery. It is not so long ago that celery would appear crisp and green on the grocer's shelves for only a few weeks, then all too soon would become limp and spongy. The fact that consumers can now buy crisp, green celery well on into the winter is no accident. Food storage specialists have found that the rapid removal of what they call "field heat" is important in storing fruits and vegetables—such as celery. One method of removing the field heat from celery is to pass it through a tunnel in which cold air is blowing at a high velocity. A newer method which is finding favor because it is quicker is hydro-cooling. In this method the celery is put into ice-cold water and cooled. In both cases, the celery is kept in cold storage warehouses at a temperature of 31 deg. F to 32 deg. F with controlled humidity. Refrigerated railroad cars are used to ship the celery, and many grocers also have refrigerated counters, which means the celery is almost garden fresh when it reaches the consumer.

Fruits like apples and pears are stored in much the same way as celery. They are quickly air-cooled, then kept in cold storage warehouses with carefully regulated temperature and humidity. All of this detailed handling in the merchandising business makes one realize how important storage is in the home. Home economists say that it is a good idea to buy as many fruits and vegetables as possible now, provided you have proper storage facilities, for not only is there likely to be a better choice, but they are likely to be less expensive while they are more plentiful. Choose well-matured fruits and vegetables that are not bruised or diseased.

IN REFRIGERATOR
A home with a cool cellar is a definite advantage, for the best storage place is cool, dark and airy. It should not be too damp, for humid air often causes moulding and soft rot, while a place that is overly-dry may cause shrivelling and the products will not stay firm. The storage place should be well insulated from the frost outside and from the heat of the furnace inside, and, very important, there should be a good circulation of air.

Apartmenters are usually limited as to storage space, so only small quantities should be bought. Nowadays, most vegetables are packaged in paper or cellophane bags... be sure to open the bags to allow the air to circulate around the vegetables. Vegetables, like turnips and parsnips, can be bought waxed and kept for a longer period of time. The outer coating of wax prevents loss of moisture and this aids in the keeping quality.

Perishables should be kept in the refrigerator. Celery, for instance, should be kept in the hydrator of the refrigerator, lacking that, it should be wrapped in wax paper or a bag to keep it moist and crisp, otherwise it is likely to become wilted and limp.

Potatoes, if properly stored, should keep six to eight months. The late varieties that are well-matured keep better than early varieties. Whether they are stored in bags or bins, there should be a good circulation of air, and it should be cool and dark. Light speeds up sprouting and also causes greening.

SWIM SUITS GO HIGH HAT

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28 (AP)—Bathing suits apparently are going formal.

The trend was revealed at the opening recently of National Fashion Press Week.

One leading designer, Rose Marie Reid, recalled the Edwardian hour-glass era. The suits even had some feather boning, but it's removable. Bodices are pointed, hips rounded, in some cases with draped folds.

Some of the new fabrics are elasticized antique satin, kailie, taffeta and grosgrain.

THE CAINE MUTINY

Thirty-fifth installment from the book THE CAINE MUTINY, copyright 1941, by Herman Wouk. Distributed by Doubleday Books.

When the meeting was adjourned, Maryk said, "Bear a hand, Willie. What's your assignment?"

"Personal searches aft. Cripes, in this weather, too—well—"

"The new ensigns Farrington and Voles, aren't assigned. Pick one of them up to help you if you want—"

Willie made his way aft. The rocking, pitching main deck was all confusion. Sailors in dripping rain gear or soaked dungarees milled on the well deck around Harding and Paynter. Two men stood naked, strangely pink and white in the drab crowd, their faces expressing embarrassment, defiance, and amused scorn. The officers tumbled through their clothes. The guards spaced along the starboard side slouched, leaning on their rifles and joked with the other sailors.

"Farrington," Willie called, crossing the well deck. "You come along with me. You'll assist me."

"Aye aye, sir," the ensign said, and fell into step behind Willie. Walking down the port passageway, the lieutenant observed over his shoulder. "This strikes you as a queer business, no doubt?"

"Well, Mr. Keith, I was feeling outside of things, and pretty useless. I'm glad of a chance to help."

Willie couldn't see his face, but the tone of sober defiance was unmistakable. It was the tone in which Willie had addressed Lieutenant Maryk and Lieutenant Gorton 15 months ago, when they had seemed to him infinitely senior, battle-wise men of the sea. For an instant he was flattered; and he reflected that the Caine itself was perhaps so bewildering and odd to Farrington that the search scarcely surprised him, after all. It was becoming hard for Willie to picture the effect of the Caine on newcomers, and to reconstruct the emotions of fresh ensigns.

They emerged from the passageway into another crowd of wet, sullen sailors, drifting here and there in the rain. Willie herded the men into places of shelter, and organized an alphabetical sequence for the stripping. The men came in pairs into the shower room to take off their clothes. Farrington went to work systematically and unsmilingly, helping Willie rummage through the dank garments. Willie had the grateful feeling that another officer had at last come aboard the Caine.

One of the first men to be stripped was Meatball. Naked, hairy, and squat, he stood grinning, while Willie felt through the dungarees and in the shoes, wrinkling his nose at the powerful animal smell. He handed them back hastily. "Okay, Meatball, get dressed."

"Aye aye, sir," said the coxswain. The process of stripping the sailors rasped Willie's nerves; it seemed to him an almost German rape of their personal rights; and the fact that they were submitting so tamely was an indication of the way the Queeg regime had weakened the crew's spirit. Their only remonstrance was obscene and impudent joking.

The head of Queeg poked around the doorway into the shower room. "Well, well, well. Everything getting under way nicely?"

"Yes, sir," said Willie.

"Fine, fine. Put Farrington to work, hey? Fine, fine." The head grinned, and nodded, and disappeared.

"Who's got a cigarette?" said Willie, a little shakily.

"Right here, sir," Meatball extended a pack, and swiftly struck a match, shielding it with a cupped fat palm. He said genially, as Willie puffed. "Gives a guy the heebie-jeebies, don't it, sir?"

Captain Queeg walked forward with rapid steps, ignoring the malevolent looks of the sailors clustered in doorways and under tarpaulins.

"Pardon me, sir," Jellybelly was at the captain's elbow. He saluted, panting, with a glance at Maryk.

"Yes, Porteous?"

"You—wanted a report, sir, from me. I've got it for you—"

"Oh, yes, yes. Excuse me, Steve. Keep an eye on things. Keep 'em moving. Come along, Porteous."

Queeg closed his cabin door and said, "Well?"

"Sir, you meant it when you promised me a transfer to yeoman's school in Frisco?" Jellybelly's look was cunning and timorous.

"Of course I did, Porteous. I don't kid about such things. If you have any information which can be proved—"

"It was the mess boys, sir," whispered the fat yeoman.

"Oh, hell, it was not. Damn it, why do you waste my time—"

"Sir, Chief Bellison saw them. It was around 1 o'clock that night. He was coming back from breaking up a crap game in the forward crew's compartment. He passed the pantry. He told a couple of chiefs, and—"

"Are you trying to tell me that my chief master-at-arms would see pilfering, and not make an arrest, and not even report to me?" Queeg pulled the steel balls out of his pocket and began to roll them.

The happy look was fading from his face, the sick wrinkles reappearing.

S.C. Women Urge Probe of Institutions

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP)—A government commission to look into conditions in a wide range of hospitals and institutions was recommended Thursday by the Women's Auxiliary of the British Columbia Social Credit League.

A resolution passed during an afternoon session of the auxiliary's three-day convention said the investigation should take in mental, private and children's hospitals as well as aged people's homes and foster-homes.

Prime aim of the move, the resolution said, would be to look into treatment being accorded patients in these institutions, particularly old-age pensioners.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Early Treatment Need For Varicose Veins

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

A correspondent writes that she is 39 years old and is now in her fifth pregnancy and is terribly troubled with varicose veins which she has never had before. Elastic stockings, she says, help only a little.

It is certainly possible that the enlarged veins in such a case are not true varicose veins, but are the result of the pregnancy. At any rate, most doctors would probably advise her not to do anything about it until after the pregnancy is over since they might get much better.

But varicose veins and varicose ulcers do cause an enormous amount of distress both physically and because of their appearance to many people as they grow older.

Varicose veins do not produce pain or discomfort unless they are inflamed, but such veins are more likely to be inflamed than normal ones.

Those who have varicose veins are more likely to have swollen feet or ankles than those with normal veins. Also, the poor circulation can produce ulcers. These ulcers sometimes become enormous, causing destruction of the skin and large open sores.

Everyone is born with folds or valves in their veins which carry the flow of blood upward. These valves prevent the blood from falling back and help to hold up the column of blood. They are especially important in the legs, where the pressure of the blood in the veins is heavy because human beings stand upright.

If people stood on their hands instead of their feet, the valves in the veins of the arms would be just as important.

Over the years the pressure on the valves in the leg's veins is great and they are often broken down. When this happens the necessary support is lessened and the veins become swollen. Most of them are near the surface because the internal veins get more support from the muscles and other tissues around them and this helps to prevent valves from breaking.

SURGERY USED OFTEN

The use of elastic bandages which support the widened and enlarged varicose veins is, of course, an old remedy and helpful in many cases. Varicose veins are sometimes removed by surgery. The use of injections for varicose veins also has been popular, but now surgery is again being used more and more.

The treatment of varicose ulcers is still difficult, although several methods are used with success. Probably the most important thing to do is to prevent serious swellings or ulcers by getting treatment before they have lasted too long.

Town Planners Under Heavy Fire For Press Ban

Policy of Victoria Town Planning Commission in "barring" the press from its meetings was blasted by J. G. Nardal, 241 George Road East, in a letter read at a City Council meeting Thursday.

He protested the "manner in which requests for changes in zoning of properties are handled."

"At present these requests go directly to the T.P.C. and their decision is handed down to the council for consideration," Mr. Nardal wrote.

"The local press is barred from the meetings of the T.P.C. and the taxpayer who may be vitally affected by the recommendation only learns about the application in the press reports of the council meeting after the matter has been voted on and often approved."

Mr. Nardal said taxpayers could not always attend all council meetings and are "dependent upon the press to keep them informed."

"Should not all such appeals be first placed before the elected representatives whose meetings are democratically open to the public and press and then referred to the T.P.C. for recommendation?"

The resolution said there is widespread dissatisfaction among consumers on quality of eggs offered for sale and that this arises from the "indifferent" quality of storage eggs, which cannot be distinguished from fresh eggs at time of purchase.

Illegitimate B.C. Births Rise Sharply Since 1952

Illegitimate births in British Columbia increased 16 per cent in the first nine months of 1952 over the same period last year, the provincial health and welfare department reported Thursday.

To the end of September this year, 1,159 such births were registered.

The health branch also reported divorces increased 15 per cent in the same period. There were 1,105 divorces in the province in the first nine months.

Live births are still on the increase. Between January and September of this year 20,987 live births were registered—871 more than for the same period in 1951.

There were 12,539 more births than deaths in the nine-month period. The rate of natural increase per 1,000 is 14.1.

Total of 276 persons didn't like their given names and made application to change them—by far the majority being men.

Infant mortality showed a slight increase for the second successive year. There were 532 deaths this year, 502 in 1951 and 452 in 1950. Maternal mortality continued to decline, as it has done for the past several years.

Heart diseases, which caused almost 38 per cent of the deaths, still remain the leading cause of death in B.C. There have been 3,253 deaths this year to date.

Accidental deaths claimed 684

Seattle Floating Bridge May Boost Travel to Victoria

A boost for Victoria's tourist trade is seen in a proposed floating bridge to link Seattle with the Olympic Peninsula, announced from Seattle Wednesday.

Chamber of Commerce officials here point out that the bridge could mean greater numbers of tourists flowing through Port Angeles to Vancouver Island, Victoria being the closest port on a one-hour ferry link.

The $82,000,000 project, planned for opening in 1958 and subject to United States army approval, would replace most of the state-operated ferry routes on Puget Sound.

Governor Arthur B. Langlie of Washington stated recently that the new system would bring Seattle 51 minutes closer to Port Orchard on the peninsula.

That afternoon, the chess games were something less exciting. There were, with Omsk, the capital of Siberia, outside our front door and we couldn't see it. Perhaps that's an exaggeration. We could see it. We could see factory chimneys and office buildings on the right bank of the river, a few kilometers away.
Towards the middle of the afternoon, one of the Algerians, the Communist one, came into the dormitory grumbling. He had been returning from the bathroom when he ran smack into a padlocked door, bumping his nose. I hurried out to see if the padlock law was in force in Siberia. And, sure enough, a strong padlock, emblazoned with a red star, kept the lavatory tightly shut.

"That's really a bit too much," I said to my Algerian companion. "Sorry, friend, but it wasn't foreseen in the Five Year Plan that this toilet must be open at three in the afternoon. I advise you to telephone to the Supreme Soviet and ask them to suspend the padlock law."

He said with a twinkle in his dark Arab eyes.
"You know," I said, "you're lucky you're among friends. Otherwise a remark like that might cost you dearly. Remember, we're in Siberia."
"So it's true what they say about Siberia?" he asked with a grin.
"And the game of chess began again, a little more sadly this time.

AN IMMENSE SLUM
I have my own opinion why we weren't allowed to visit Omsk. On our first trip across Siberia, the plane had flown in a wide circle above the town before it came in for a landing. It was noon and sunny without a cloud in the sky. I had been able to fix the town in my memory as we flew over it at less than 1,000 feet.

Omsk is an immense slum. Three or four of the main streets are paved. The rest are quagmires. Except for the factories and the office buildings, the town is built of round wooden huts. You'd think you were in a mining town which had sprung up overnight. But Omsk is an old city which must have a population of almost 500,000.

Omsk has remained in my memory as a symbol of liberty in the Soviet Union.

Rum stories...

"To train the shark was not so simple as you may think," said the bosun.

"Fortunately, the brig when she grounded was loaded to the marks with Lamb's Navy Rum. By judiciously rewarding my finny friend with dark invigorating tets, I so influenced his mind that he would give me the better fish such as turbot, retaining for himself only inferior qualities like cod. A trivial point, perhaps, but I thought good for discipline. I was about to send him to bring me a wife from among the girls bathing in a distant lagoon, when suddenly I sighted a sail. Instantly mounting the shark I went alongside and pausing only to present him with the corkscrew, climbed aboard."

"That's a Rum Story," said the wedding guest incautiously.

"Very kind of you, I'm sure, sir," replied the mariner. "I could just fancy a Lamb's Navy Rum."

CHINESE CALLED LOVERS OF PEACE

'China Not at War With Anyone' Claims Union Delegate, Back From Peking Parley

Returned Peking Peace Council delegate Elgin Neish defended the way of life in Red China before a mixed audience of ardent sympathizers and determined hecklers on Thursday night.

Several times the two groups carried the subject away from the speaker and bounced it about on the floor.

The hush that preceded a storm was afforded the Victoria trade unionist while he described the journey behind the Iron Curtain. The 250-pound fisherman gave fluent approval to the many exhibits of the "peace-loving" Chinese that greeted his arrival and departure with cherry blossom parades and the waving of white doves.

He pointed to the fact that 660,000 Chinese had paraded for seven hours before the Peace Council met chanting "Long live peace," indicating the true feeling of the Chinese people.

SIX FROM RUSSIA

The U.S.S.R. had six delegates at the peace parley. Pakistan had 29, India 39 and Canada 12. Any country, he said, could have blocked Russian legislation, thereby proving the meet was not directed by Russia.

He told of the hotel erected for the Peace Council delegates, eight stories of steam-heated magnificence, that had been built in 75 days.

China's workers get the best of treatment, Mr. Neish stated. Expectant mothers in industry are given lighter tasks and after the child is born it can be kept in a nursery at the factory.

While the baby is nursing, the greatest care is taken to insure its protection in transporting it to the mother. There is no need for her to leave the job.

Mr. Neish lauded the greatly increased harvests of China and her great technical advancements under the Red regime. Freedom of churches is complete there, he stated, and the hospitals are not better anywhere.

A group of scoffers who were in attendance at the recent John Hines meeting was thwarted at first by the chairman's request for written questions... and his subsequent refusal to accept most of those he received on the grounds that they were not pertinent. The ensuing commotion by both factions brought the following statements from the speaker, however.

"No, I was not a delegate officially sent by the Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union. Any union man who gave a dollar toward the trip was my sponsor, though."

"China needs salmon and would buy it on a barter basis. If this fails I would suggest a long-term loan to enable her to buy it."

Educator Worries Over Specialists In Education World

TORONTO, Nov. 28 (BUP)—Increased specialization in education may soon produce men who know almost nothing outside their own narrow fields, a prominent American educator said Thursday night.

Dr. Hugh Taylor, dean of graduate studies at Princeton University, predicted a future "super-specialist" as the eventual product, a semi-literate except for his training for special technique. He said that in many schools where foreign language studies are already under attack, the graduate will be unable to communicate ideas with fellow workers in other lands.

Taylor urged a fusion of religious and scientific world organizations, and said the result "might well be the signal need to resolve the stresses and strains in the world today."

He spoke to a forum at the University of Toronto.

Student at U.B.C. Loses Hand In Blast as Stunt Backfires

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP)—A University of British Columbia student lost his left hand in an explosion Thursday when a stunt to pep up interest in a student meeting backfired.

Robert Tappay, 23, an advance student in chemistry, had loaded his car with explosive chemicals for a bonfire and display.

Tappay was sitting in the parked car when a shattering explosion threw him out of the vehicle. The blast shattered front and back car windows and lifted the hood and trunk door.

Tappay was in serious condition in hospital three hours after the accident.

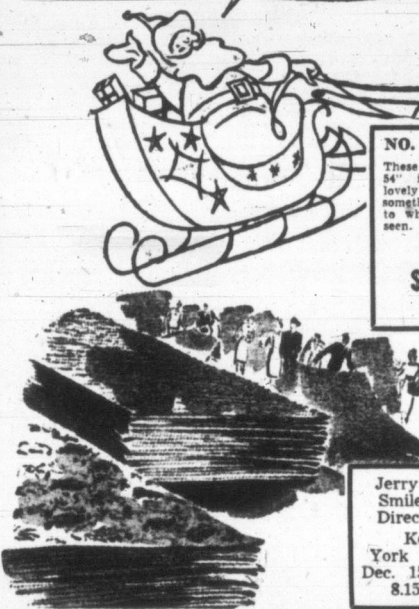

She had been a member of the women's auxiliary to St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, for the past 20 years and was a past regent of Camosun Chapter, L.O.E. She is survived by her husband, Albert E. Hopkins.

Coronation Guides Being Well Trained

LONDON (CP)—A panel of specially-trained guides is being organized by the British Travel and Holiday Association to conduct visitors on sight-seeing tours around London during coronation year.

From a growing pool of applicants, those selected for the job will undergo an intensive course of study starting early in November and lasting for three months.

The successful candidates will be given a series of lectures dealing with the historical background of London and its environs, as well as a refresher course on the city's famous buildings, local government, transport system and other attractions of interest to visitors.

The special training program calls for set tours of the principal tourist centres, under the supervision of experienced guides. This will be followed by stiff tests in the technique of delivering interesting and informative commentaries and handling large parties of overseas.

While in training, candidates will be required to read extensively on art and architecture and keep abreast of developments in the entertainment world.

"Our aim is to provide guides who will create a good impression on visitors," said an official of the association. "We want people to go home and talk so enthusiastically about their trip to London that many others will come over to see the sights of our great city."

COLLEGE ACCEPTS BLOOD CHALLENGE

Victoria Undergrads Seek to Better
U.B.C.'s 55 Per Cent Donors' Record

By DINAH KERR, Times College Reporter

A challenge from the University of British Columbia to match their record of 55 per cent of the student body donating blood to the Red Cross will be accepted by Victoria College.

The challenge, on a per capita basis, has been issued to all Canadian universities.

A College-Normal School blood clinic, tentatively scheduled for early January, will be sponsored by the Student Christian Movement. Director is Marc Bell.

The students will work in cooperation with Hugh Cuplis, Canadian Red Cross Society publicity man and chairman of the youth organization. Mr. Cuplis plans to organize a Pint Parade for the Sunday previous to the College-Normal School donation clinic. This would consist of professional entertainment in a Victoria theatre. Admission to the Pint Parade will be a signed pledge to donate blood at the following day's Red Cross clinic.

Whether the clinic will take the form of a competition with the Normal School has not been decided.

Christmas came early to the Men's Undergraduate Society of Victoria College.

Members have already received handsome gifts of $100 from the faculty and $200 from the Student Council, which will be used to furnish the men's commons room.

It is likely that a balance of $170 from the Ewing Memorial Trust Fund will be used for the same purpose in memory of the late principal.

Barrie Brinkworth, sophomore director of the McLean-Hunter magazine subscription campaign, announced Thursday that Geoff Conway is top salesman.

He urged all students to do their utmost if they are to reach their $1,000-goal by Christmas.

Student salesmen are selling subscriptions to all Canadian and American magazines. Proceeds will be added to the college construction fund.

Some strings are attached, however, to the peace pact proposal.

Credit Facilities Hamper British Exporters; Former Foes Cashing in

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

LONDON (CP)—Foreign trade competition, bolstered by more acceptable credit facilities and barter deals, is causing increasing concern among British manufacturers, especially those engaged in production of electrical equipment, vehicles and machinery.

Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler has already announced the government's decision to ease exchange controls governing export credits, but spokesmen for the industries complain that the new directives do not go far enough.

They assert that important contracts are being lost to Germany, Italy, France, and in some instances to the United States, because manufacturers there are able to offer better credit facilities than United Kingdom exporters.

The export credit guarantee department and other official bodies concerned are also blamed for loss of some business by failing to act with sufficient speed on policy decisions affecting particular exports.

A case is cited where an order worth more than £1,000,000 from Pakistan for railway Diesel engines, coaches and telephone equipment, was diverted to other countries when British manufacturers spoke of delivery delays of about three years.

Pakistan's finance minister, H. Ahmed, head of the purchasing commission that visited London, went on to negotiate deals for the Diesel engines from the United States, the telephone gear from Germany and the coaches from Belgium.

Ahmed also reported that the German order is not only being fulfilled promptly but that the Germans have set up a special organization offering industrial training facilities to Pakistanis.

Another United Kingdom company reported it had lost an order for 700 trolley-buses because of its inability to match the credit terms offered by competing German interests. Other firms have complained they face loss of prospective contracts to Italy, because of more favorable credit and barter inducements.

"We are faced with this disturbing situation although British prices and quality are fully competitive," said one manufacturer. "Constantly urged to export more, and often spending a great deal of time and money developing overseas markets, manufacturers are naturally disheartened when they find the contracts are going elsewhere because foreign exporters are being assisted to a greater extent than the British producer."

Official quarters were inclined to minimize the gravity of the complaints. It was admitted that credit facilities in some instances had been unavoidably delayed and sometimes refused. Based on policy, it was explained, credit terms were not approved for

Coast Salmon Fishing Area to Reopen

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP)—Fisheries Minister Sinclair said today the British Columbia coastal area between Satellite Channel and Comox will be opened for salmon fishing between Dec. 15 and Dec. 31.

Wall Street Hits Another New High

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP)—Another high for the year was established today by the stock market with a strong advance.

Railroads and steels led the rise with fair support from the remainder of the list. There were, however, soft spots in scattered areas.

Forecasts Early Liquor Law Changes

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP)—New liquor legislation will be presented to the first session of the Social Credit legislature, expected in February, Attorney-General Robert Bonner indicated today.

He told the Secord convention that the report of the Liquor Inquiry Commission will be in his hands Dec. 31.

Herring Fishermen Want Arbitration

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP)—British Columbia coast herring fishermen said today they will return to the grounds if Premier W. A. C. Bennett orders arbitration to settle their price dispute with operators.

The union said its members are prepared to fish during arbitration, but it did not state under what price conditions.

Raise to Cost Railroads $53 Million

Extra Freight Charge Asked To Cover Annual Increase

MONTREAL, Nov. 28 (CP)—The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways today announced acceptance of a federal conciliation board report recommending an average wage increase of 16 cents an hour for non-operating railway workers.

At the same time, they announced they had made application with the board of transport commissioners for a boost in freight rates to cover that portion of the cost of the wage increases that would go to freight and passenger employees.

In a joint statement, the railroads estimated that their acceptance of the conciliation board's majority report would add $52,754,000 a year to their wage costs.

The freight rate increase application will cover $42,173,000 of that amount—$25,273,000 for the C.P.R. and $16,900,000 for the C.N.R. The freight increase would amount to 9 per cent and from 10 to 20 cents a ton on coal and coke.

"At the same time," the statement added, "the board is being informed that our two railways are considering and in due course will propose such increases in rates and tolls in respect of their other services as are necessary to meet the cost of the wage increases not being recouped by the present freight application."

The statement said the railways have informed Labor Minister Gregg of their willingness to accept the report.

This had been done "in the very sincere hope" that the railway brotherhoods representing the 144,000 non-operating employees "will join us and thus prevent any possibility of a recurrence of the unhappy events of two years ago."

DISTILLERY HEAD ON PROBE STAND

A. L. McLennan Says Law Can't Stop Liquor Outlet Tie-Ins

VANCOUVER, Nov. 28 (CP)—A prominent British Columbia distillery man believes it is impossible to draft a law which would effectively block distillers and brewers from controlling the retail outlets of liquor.

A. L. McLennan, president of United Distillers of Canada Ltd., told the B.C. liquor inquiry commission Thursday that wherever a law has been written to control the outlet of retail liquor, it has been broken.

He said that in other parts of Canada, distillers controlled many outlets for liquor regardless of what the law might be.

DOESN'T WORK

"In the United States there is a law against it," Mr. McLennan said, "but it doesn't work."

"The law says the distillers cannot own any part of a wholesale or retail outlet for liquor, but they do. Who is to stop them financing under another name?"

Mr. McLennan was questioned at length on this point by George Home, a member of the commission set up to inquire into the best methods of providing for sale of liquor by the glass, approved by British Columbians in a summer plebiscite.

Mr. Home: "Are you suggesting, Mr. McLennan, that it is practically impossible, very difficult, to write a law which would keep distillery interests or brewery interests either directly or indirectly out of controlling of those various outlets?"

Mr. McLennan: "There is a law in the United States and it doesn't work. Mr. Home, there is a law against murder in Vancouver, British Columbia and Canada, but there are murders taking place, Mr. Home."

Mr. Home: "You feel it is almost impossible to write a law that can't be circumvented by people who wish to circumvent it in this particular instance."

"I won't say circumvent—they break it," Mr. McLennan replied.

"If they can't circumvent it, they break it. It happens every day."

The commission resumes hearings at Victoria Monday and will return to Vancouver next Wednesday.

Everest Hikers Keep Experts Busy Guessing

NEW DELHI, Nov. 28 (AP)—Himalayan travel experts here have a favorite indoor sport these days—trying to figure out whether the Swiss mountain climbing expedition has succeeded in conquering Mount Everest.

There has been no direct word for some time from the climbers and their native companions. The expedition sold exclusive news and photo rights in order to finance the try, and this may have something to do with the present lack of news.

Cheaper Fags Will Be Sold In Calgary

CALGARY, Nov. 28 (CP)—Twenty American cigarettes, to retail at 33 cents may be sold in at least one Calgary grocery chain in the next few weeks.

"We're getting them," a spokesman for Canada Safeway Ltd., said today. "But we don't know just when they will arrive."

He said the cigarettes would come from eastern Canada but were in short supply there. "They will just send them along if they figure we will take them."

The cigarettes are of a cheaper American make. Three brands, "Crests," "Shirleys" and "Southland" have been retailing in Toronto and, it is understood, in Winnipeg.

LATE-COMERS SOCRED TARGET

By GORDON FORBES, Times Legislative Reporter
VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 28—The Social Credit Party in convention here today moved to keep newcomers to the party from gaining positions of control.

At the opening of the afternoon session several constituency associations submitted amendments to the constitution which would prohibit any member of less than six months' standing from holding office in any Social Credit association.

Members seeking to run for the legislature would be required to have been a member in good standing for at least 12 months.

The proposal is expected to be part of a hotly debated this afternoon between old and new factions of the party.

There were also some mild complaints from some delegates that most of today's program is being monopolized by formalities, and that there would be little chance for business discussions.

The resolutions, many of them considered of top importance, and valuable in guidance to the new government, will not be discussed until after 5 p.m., and adjournment of today's session is scheduled for around 6 p.m.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett called on 700 cheering delegates to "go back to your ridings and organize as you have never organized before."

Speaking in the banner-decked Georgia Street auditorium to the party's first convention since it formed a government, Premier Bennett declared:

"We don't want 19 seats next time. We want 48. We will be facing the electorate again in a few months and every constituency must be ready."

The premier, when he rose to speak, was greeted with a standing ovation and loud cheering and placard-waving by his successful supporters.

Plane Strikes Tree In Fog on Landing

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 28 (AP)—A four-engined military plane from Alaska crashed in flames in a field south of here shortly after midnight and 36 of the 39 aboard were dead.

While scattered fires still marked the scene of the post-holiday tragedy, Coroner Larry Amundsen said 36 were dead or missing.

The plane carried servicemen and dependents. The bodies of four babies were among those found scattered at the scene of the disaster.

At least two witnesses to the tragedy said the plane was afire as it "whooshed" down to a tree-flanked field about a mile from its destination at McChord Air Force Base.

HEAVY FOG

Capt. Jack Beasley, public information officer at McChord, said reports to the base indicated the plane struck a tree while coming in through the heavy fog for a ground-control approach landing.

All but a section of the tail was destroyed in the resulting fire and explosion. Bodies were scattered over 200 feet from the wreckage.

The crash added to the toll of a disastrous three weeks for military transports aviation around the North Pacific rim.

If the death toll stands at 36 in Friday's crash, it makes a total of 198 dead or presumed dead along the arc from Korea to Alaska to McChord and Montana. The total includes 91 on three big transports in Alaska, 55 in two Korea crashes, eight in Montana and eight in a Canadian crash on Vancouver Island.

McChord base reported the transport, a C-54, was circling for an approach to the field when the disaster struck.

NAME SURVIVORS

The manifest listed 18 military passengers, 14 civilians and a crew of seven, Captain Beasley reported. The only known survivors in Tacoma hospitals early today were: Airman Curtis Redd, McChord base, burns; Airman Bobby Wilson, Great Falls, Mont., head injury, internal injuries and burns; an Alaskan boy who was listed as Joseph Icoavitt, eight, broken legs and burns.

First witnesses at the scene said they could hear the heart-rending cries of a baby in the burning wreckage. They were helpless to do anything about it.

U.S. to Lift Cattle Import Ban March 1

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (AP)—The U.S. Agriculture Department announced today that the American ban on import of Canadian cattle and other livestock and livestock products will be lifted next March 1.

It was imposed Feb. 26 because of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

The department said the lifting of the ban is contingent on no new outbreak of the disease in the interim.

The announcement follows by nearly three months the lifting of a similar ban on Mexican livestock and livestock products because of a serious epidemic in that country.

The department credited strong measures adopted by Canadian officials last February after the outbreak in Saskatchewan with apparently eliminating the disease.

The present ban affects cattle, sheep, other domestic ruminants; swine, and fresh, chilled or frozen beef, veal, mutton, lamb and pork. A ruminant is a cud-chewing animal.

Vancouver Stocks Closing Prices

Activity in the stock of Quatsino Company, active in development of iron ore on northern Vancouver Island, featured trade in the final session on Vancouver Exchange today. The stock closed at 60 cents, up 2.

Western oils attracted some support but gains were negligible. Del Rio sold at $2.60, off 5; Central Leduc $3.10; York 34 cents.

Canadian Western Lumber traded at 88½, unchanged.

STAD TONTO GOES BERSERK

Edmonton Esks Greeted by East As Grey Cup Fever Sweeps Nation

By W. R. WHEATLEY

TORONTO, Nov. 28 (CP)—Conservative Toronto began to jump with football fever practically at the crack of dawn today and when the big Grey Cup special pulled in several hours late from Edmonton the delirium was on.

Early arrivals came in by regular trains from the west to join others who had flown in.

Outside Union Station shivering peddlers were on the job hawking green-and-gold ribbons and pennants and miniature Grey Cups.

Hotel lobbies became alive and everybody talked football. Edmonton Eskimos' colors were everywhere. There were cowboy and cowgirl hats and big "I Like Esks" buttons on gaudy mackinaws.

The crowds milled about, waiting for the arrival of the team.

About noon the train announcer bawled out dramatically over the public-address system: "Attention, please. The Grey Cup special has arrived."

A roar went out from the 1,000 persons crowded about the lower level of the station. Up above Mayor Allan Lamport was welcoming the new arrivals.

On hand was an official welcome from Toronto Argonauts, dressed in full football regalia, helmet and all. He carried a sign: "Welcome Esks."

A bagpipe band played as the happy western fans—from Winnipeg, Regina and other points as well as Edmonton—pranced about and formed a parade.

The marchers swung out the red and white bunting that was around the 12-car Grey Cup special was late. Then westerners and easterners alike converged on the station.

main doors to the street and crossed on to the Royal York Hotel, draped in front with a big green-and-gold welcome sign.

The lobby became a bedlam as the crowds whooped and swarmed about.

A chant went up "heigh-ho, the Eskimos." One woman screamed: "A horse; if we only had a horse."

From nowhere a girl pipe band appeared and a grand parade started in the lobby, jammed through revolving doors and burst into Front Street. Colors streaming, the paraders headed for uptown.

While they carried on with their big whoop-o-doo the Eskimo team they came a couple of thousand miles to see was only a few blocks away, at Maple Leaf arena. There coach Frankie Filchook was giving his men their final tune-up before they meet Argos Saturday in the classic.
